

World of Cybersluts

Or Generic Lewd Cyberpunk

Shining towers, dilapidated slums, and sprawling red light districts. This is the dystopian future, where corporations have grown more powerful than nations, everything and everyone is monitored by someone, and the world is awash in a sea of neon and chrome.

What little remains of unspoiled nature is on its way out, replaced with urban jungle. Cybernetics are commonplace, the net connects everyone together, and perhaps most importantly, people are really, really horny. Sex is woven into every part of the world.

Sexual morals have loosened up greatly. Cybernetics were invented to save lives and replace damaged body parts first, but the second thing people did with them was putting them to lewd uses. The megacorporations have mostly settled into a "sex sells" business model by now. And of course, cyberspace is for porn, like the internet before it.

Welcome to the city, have +1000 cyber points to get started.

ORIGINS:

Choose one origin for free, any of which can be treated as a drop in option if you prefer not gaining any memories or background in this world.

Runner

You're a mercenary, freelance criminal, or professional outcast. The very definition of a deniable wetwork specialist. Where you came from and why you're doing it can vary wildly. Some start running for fame, pussy, or to rebel against the corps, but the core of the job is always the same. When problems come up that can't be solved by legal means, people turn to you. Governments, wealthy individuals, organized crime, and even the corps all come to people like you when they want something done, but don't want to get their hands dirty. Taking a side gig as a very dangerous escort can also be remarkably profitable.

Corporate

While others have to scrounge to get by, you're part of the ruling elite. Well, almost at least. You might not be in charge of a corporation, let alone a megacorporation, but you've got a high-paying job at one, with your own office and decent influence. If you want to go higher, you'll need to deal with cutthroat corporate politics, thinly veiled corruption, and a lot more stress. But hey, it's still better than being on the streets, and there's usually a few interns around to screw senseless when the stress gets too much.

Ganger

Screw the corps and their fancy high rises. You're living in the real world, on the streets, in the slums. And out here, you join a gang to get ahead in life. Some are nicer than others, but at the end of the day your group claimed the local territory and started making money with the stuff the corps won't sell directly. Sexslaves, drugs, bootleg copies... What you do might be illegal, but people stopped caring about legality a long time ago in the slums. It's a rare occurrence that the rent-a-cops dare poke their heads into your business anyway.

Entertainer

You're a stripper, hooker, pornstar. Maybe one of those, maybe multiple. The point is that you entertain the horny masses, probably without wearing clothes. Others might get sex on the side, but you've made it your business and you're good at it, regardless of whether you do it in meatspace or on the net. The specifics just determine whether you dance at a club downtown, work from your room at home, or use a studio to record everything you do. Regardless, you've got the chromed looks and skills for small success at least.

Techie

Others might use technology, but you specialize in it. Why bother dating, or looking for love, or blowing your paycheck on renting someone for sex, when you can just build and program your ideal lover? Besides, your tinkering skills are in high demand. You could work for a corp if you're fine giving up creative freedom in return for a state of the art workspace, or serve as the support for a team of runners if you're more into high stakes heists and hacking. Or you could just stay at home and work on perfecting your AI girlfriend instead.

You may also freely choose your age and gender.

"RACES":

Or more properly, how artificial are you?

Wetware [Free]

The usual option, you're a human. Though with the prevalence of modern cybernetics you may not be entirely flesh and blood. Still, even if you've been augmented enough that people could consider you more machine than man, you've got a human brain and started out with a natural body. It doesn't grant you any physical advantages, but also no drawbacks.

Hardware [100cp]

Made in the likeness of man, you are an android. Instead of flesh and blood, your body is made out of metal and plastics. This gives some advantages over humans. You don't need to eat or sleep, and the only vital part of your body is your central processing unit. Everything else can easily be repaired or replaced with new parts. On the other hand, you're not really any stronger or smarter and you still need energy to keep functioning. It's also pretty likely that humans won't see you as a fully "real" person.

Software [100cp/200cp]

Going beyond aping humanity, you're an unfettered artificial intelligence. Unlike an android, you can freely move through the Net and inhabit any device with enough storage capacity to accommodate you. Your digital existence means you're not shackled to a physical body and can easily navigate cyberspace, but on the other hand leaves you somewhat removed from the physical world. And while your intelligence doesn't change, your processing speed may vary a bit depending on the hardware you're currently running on.

For 100cp, you start out on a secure server that allows you to run at normal processing speeds with a stable connection to the Net provided. Being entirely digital, you will have no access to the Cybernetics & Augmentations section. For 200cp, you can instead upgrade to an artificial body that grants you all of the benefits of androids.

PERKS:

Discounts are half off, with 100cp perks being free if discounted.

Digital Lewdness [100cp, free for Software]

Almost all of the artificial intelligences here are based on a reproduction or at least an approximation of the human mind. Which means that most of the truly advanced AIs also have needs. What's a lonely virtual presence to do, when they're just running on a remote server with no physical body to satisfy those urges? Obviously, the solution to this is just to translate sex into a digital form that can be enjoyed in cyberspace.

You've cracked the code on virtual sex, able to show other artificial intelligence and any enterprising humans browsing the Net a good time through purely virtual and mental means. So go ahead and mesh that code together, decrypt your way into their ~~pants~~ firewall, and get deep into the erogenous data of your AI lover's software. Really tease those circuits. Also gives you a flair for dirty talk, particularly using coding and hacking metaphors.

Runner:

Edging Out [100cp, free Runner]

Even the best runners have bad days. Occasionally a job just ends up going tits-up, either because of bad luck, bad intel, or because they fucked up. What separates the best runners from the dead runners is how they deal with bad runs like that.

You're good at quickly thinking up exit strategies for any situation, whether that's a way to quickly break up with someone or get out of a facility you infiltrated. Of those, the solutions involving seduction and sex tend to go better for you. You've got the luck needed to get out of situations so sticky that they would be certain death or worse to anyone else, as long as you don't mind getting a little sticky yourself in the process. So as long as you're willing to act slutty enough, you'll get away with a lot.

Get caught on tape and a quick blowjob might be all you need to do to have the evidence erased. But bigger problems would require more sex to get out of. For example, if security ends up cornering you in the middle of a heavily guarded corporate facility, they might let you go after fucking all of them instead of putting you in a bodybag or a max-security prison.

Wetwork Whore [200cp, discount Runner]

For every good runner, there's a dozen amateurs who won't last a month in the business. You're not just one of the bright-eyed rookies looking to get into the mercenary and shadow operations business, you've got the skills and experience of an actual runner.

Stealth, infiltration, combat... You've got it all, along with a toned and athletic body. How to hide yourself and the evidence of your trysts. How to sell a disguise as a whore or a stripper (you'd be surprised how many places you can get into like that). How much skin to show for maximum distraction, while still retaining some functional armour.

Martial arts and acrobatics that could double as erotic dances, plus enough practice with them to know exactly when to flash an opponent for an opportunity in a fight. You're a crack shot and equally adept at wielding both katanas and oversized sextoys. Most importantly, your training has also given you the stamina to amaze anyone you get in bed with, not to mention abs you could grate faux-cheese on and an ass you bounce a neo-quarter off.

Sexual Legend [400cp, discount Runner]

Some people start running because they want to become legends, dreaming of going out in a blaze of glory. Most end up as corp-owned sexdolls somewhere instead. But for successful runners, a solid reputation is worth more than gold.

You have it easier than most, as word of your actions and prowess spreads like wildfire on the streets. Your reputation builds much faster, making it easy to ensure that everyone in the city knows your name as a great runner or just a fantastic lay. Either way, your reputation will open doors and legs for you wherever you go once you get the ball rolling.

As you get more well-known, you also get increasingly easier access to the best job offers, high-end wares, and above all, hookups. Even a serious, professional reputation makes you a sexual fantasy of the people who hear about you, whether they want to get in bed with the hypercompetent runner, fantasize about the ruthless corp executive stepping on them, or imagine the gang boss keeping them as a sexslave.

Fuck The Man [600cp, discount Runner]

This world is controlled by giant megacorps and there is little the people living in it can do about it. But maybe the people fucking in it can make a difference, because things just work out better for you if you mix some sexual tactics into the good fight.

To put it simply, the lewder you are, the more success you'll find as a runner. Just having regular sex will let you push your body and cyberware just that little bit further, giving you a slight but noticeable edge over everyone else. But the real benefit of this only comes into play when you start to mix business with pleasure.

The more sex and carnality you indulge in during your jobs and fights, the easier they get. You run into opportunities to solve things in sexual ways far more often than you should, like the way you always seem to run into the most attractive security guards this side of the city, and using sexual tactics to achieve your goals tends to work out improbably well for you. You might seduce your way into getting your hands on top-secret info and access, distract the elite guards of even the most secure facilities with a gangbang, or get through corporate ICE using a security gap that involves digitally fucking security's avatars.

If you managed something truly ridiculously debauched, you might even be able to take on a corp head-on. Dismantling power structures and revealing conspiracies through the power of incredibly wild public orgies or something like that. Just keep in mind that megacorps aren't known to give up easily or take things lying down. So either get out on time or make sure you have the stamina to keep fucking them.

Corporate:

Job Security [100cp, free Corporate]

Profit is everything. It's certainly more important than little things like human resources violations, "abuses" of authority, or office dress codes. Those can all be swept under the rug in the name of profit, if that's what's needed to keep a valuable employee.

As long as you keep making a profit, you have a good amount of leeway on what you can get away with sexually. Meet your quotas, and the higher ups won't care one bit that you're constantly fucking your secretary on company time. But if you go beyond what's expected of someone in a basic corporate job, you can get away with a lot more. Be the top earner in your department, and they won't care that you're fucking everyone's secretaries.

This goes all the way down too, with your coworkers and subordinates knowing to put up with your desires as long as you continue being successful. They might not appreciate you going around half-naked or keeping a girl under your desk all day, but they'll let it slide for the sake of the corporation... and to keep their own jobs.

Sex Sells [200cp, discount Corporate]

Sex is just one more bargaining chip in negotiations. One you know how to use very well, almost effortlessly getting better deals when you throw in sex. What's a few million or billion more or less when they get to have a "backroom meeting" with you? Now, they do have to actually be interested in fucking you (or other "assets" you bring in) in the first place, but it's generally easy enough to find a way to appeal to your would-be business partners. Note that this does not have to be offered in person. Feel free to add sexy additions to the products you're trying to sell, and watch sales rapidly go up.

Naturally, this goes both ways. If you're willing to offer people favourable bargains, getting sex in return becomes much easier. That hot CEO who normally wouldn't give you the time of day would be far more tempted if it's bundled with a discount on the goods she wants from your company and while you might overpay a little on that stock you're planning to buy, your supplier's amazing blowjobs will make up for that.

Bottom Line [400cp, discount Corporate]

Money is power. This has never been more true than in the neon era, where the only true authority is that of the corporation. But you have truly taken that old adage to heart.

Wealth and influence quite literally grants you power over others, in the form of a dominant aura that scales in strength with the difference in status and means between you and other people. Your presence, charisma, and the lust you inspire are all magnified by an amount that is roughly equal to how much greater your net worth is compared to others.

Not only that, but the effect is further amplified for people who actually work for you or are otherwise subject to your authority, affecting them even at a distance. Any such employees and subordinates grow noticeably more submissive and enamored with you as time goes on, depending on their own wealth and how directly they work for you. It would take some time to meaningfully affect a wage slave on the other side of the planet or an equally rich colleague who only technically reports to you. But an intern assigned to assist you directly? They'll be on their knees on their first day. And if you were to rise up high enough to head your own corporation, you would soon become all but unquestionable within its ranks.

Hostile Takeover [600cp, discount Corporate]

Corporations rule this world from their boardrooms, and you are (or will be) one of its corporate overlords. You have an impeccable business sense, take to cutthroat corporate politics like a fish to water, and are a natural expert in backroom deals. You're the kind of person who actually could go from nothing to a millionaire or eventually raise up your own megacorp just through hard work and leveraging your business skills.

But more than that, you're able to leverage your money and financial skills to ignore the rules and fulfill all your sexual fantasies. You have a remarkable talent for picking out just who you have to bribe to get whatever you want. As long as you have the money, you can lobby for prostitution to be legalized (possibly only for your corporation) in record time, get away with rape despite clear evidence pointing to your guilt, or marry a dozen people at the same time and have a priest sign off on it. Laws only apply to poor people after all. Even if you have to make them poor first. Financially destroying your supposed rivals to force them into your employ as glorified sex slaves looks easy when you do it. And, obviously, everyone('s booty) has a price. Even the most upstanding and prideful of your enemies could be tempted into your bedroom if you offer them enough money in return.

Ganger:

Just the Tip [100cp, free Ganger]

Some gangs seem like pretty reasonable groups to join, people making the best of a bad situation and tryna' do right by their neighborhood. But others are made up of killer clowns or BDSM-themed cyborgs and you have to wonder who'd willingly join those gangs. Maybe it's just that they got to talking with you (or someone like you) first, because you're scarily good at getting people to ignore their hesitation and better judgment.

Talk someone into joining your gang of crazies, getting that piece of obvious cyberware, or resigning from their steady job to try becoming a stripper. You gotta have something to work with, you're not going to convince people who are violently opposed to the idea, but it all just sounds so reasonable when you say it. There ain't anyone better than you at getting people to try that first hit of an bimbofying or aphrodisiac drug, or at getting them to believe you when you say you'll pull out before you cum inside.

Responsible Recycling [200cp, discount Ganger]

Know what some of the more principled gangs try to do a lot? Clean up the streets, cause the police sure ain't about to give a shit. You're really good at that too. Picking up trash and recycling them. Yeah, them, we're talking the human kind of trash here. You're really good at beating your enemies down without doing permanent damage, just knocking them out, and then picking them up to put them to much better use.

Mostly by pimping them out as new sex slaves. Sure, you're good at "recycling" their ware as well, somehow managing to find a buyer for even something like a 'lightly used' cyberdick. But the real money is in sex. As long as you manage "your" new girls (however you want to do that), clients will be lining up to fuck them. Even better if they actually were dangerous, because their enemies will be paying through the nose for a revenge fucking.

Can't Beat The Cyber Cock [400cp, discount Ganger]

Did you know humans have a preset fuck limit, and once they reach that limit their mind just shuts down? Nah, that's total bullshit. But you might think it was true looking at your ability to break people down. Just strap them into a fuckmachine or get a group of cyberdicked guys to gangbang them and keep fucking them until they break.

You're an expert at using all kinds of machines and cyberware to fuck the resistance and independence out of your soon-to-be sex slaves. Once their will is broken they'll obediently follow whatever orders you give them, driven by their libido and loyalty to you. Doesn't really matter if you do it with your own metal cock or leave them tied up in a closet with all their holes stuffed with vibrators, as long as they're continually getting fucked and bombarded with pleasure they'll eventually break into obedient sex slaves. How long it actually takes for their resistance to shatter depends mostly on your victim's willpower, but you could dose them up with a fuckton of aphrodisiacs or something if you want it to go faster.

Gang Boss [600cp, discount Ganger]

Let the suits keep their fancy high rises, you rule the streets. If you're not in charge of your own gang yet, you will be soon. You're the kind of crazy that can start a gang, establish your territory, and make it stick. Once you've claimed your territory, the cops will be too afraid to get in, the corps will consider it too expensive to reclaim, and the word on the street will be that you're the new law. Whether you just want everyone to fear you and leave your gang alone, or you want to make sure everyone there answers to you in the end.

The fear you inspire increases with how dangerous you (and to a lesser extent, your gang members) are and is mixed with lust. At base you could maintain control over a couple of districts with ease and maybe rule an entire city with enough effort, but as you get more brutal and physically or sexually powerful, your gang's dominance can slowly expand.

At the same time, the desire you inspires grows to match the terror you impress on people. Those who live in your territory will be shaking in fear like a leaf at the thought of fucking with you, and shaking with arousal at the thought of getting fucked by you. Even the members of your own gang will be scared and aroused by you, fostering a horny sort of loyalty.

Entertainer:

Chrome Curves [100cp, free Entertainer]

People get augmented for a variety of reasons. People do still get cyberware to replace missing or damaged body parts, but these days there are many more who get augmented simply for the practical benefits offered by cybernetics. Corps mandate them to improve their employees' efficiency, mercenaries install combat-grade augments to make themselves deadlier, and some people get them simply as fashion statements.

Regardless of what your own reasons are, people looking at you might think you got your cyberware just because of how good it looks on you. Your cybernetics and other alterations to your body are always seen in an aesthetically pleasing light, the obvious metal parts just magnifying your natural beauty further. Even a basic cyberlimb would look better on you than it should, turning someone with plain looks into a cybernetic beauty, while more stylish or extensive augmentations will further increase the effect. At the very least you'll never need to worry about unintentionally turning people off with your fondness for chrome.

Synthetic Stripper [200cp, discount Entertainer]

Anyone with a pretty face could take up stripping, but it takes talent and skill to "entertain" people like you do. You're not just a professional, you're the star of the show. Stripping, pole dancing, normal erotic dances, you've mastered them all. It would be no exaggeration that yours is the best show in the city at least, and probably further too. Of course you're just as good on a bed as you are on the stage, being skilled enough at fucking to make every night with you an incredible experience for your lovers (or clients) and thoroughly enjoy yourself to boot. You're particularly good at using any cyberware that might help between the sheets, allowing a few choice augmentations to upgrade the entire affair.

All that dance practice has left you remarkably athletic and flexible too, which can come in handy off the stage as well. More generally, you have a gift for making your every movement ooze sex appeal. For the really freaky, you could even make something like dismantling your cyberware weirdly sexual or work it into a stripping routine.

Virtual Persona [400cp, discount Entertainer]

But this is the information age, the age of the Net. Why dance in some old club, when you could instead reach across cyberspace to "entertain" many more? You're an expert in virtual shows, camming, and making your own porn. It barely matters for you if you're doing it live or have your videos edited to perfection, you're camera-ready at all times and can affect people at least as well through messages and videos as you could in person. Just your expressions and voice are more arousing than most people's touches.

Oddly, it also doesn't seem to matter for you if you're actually showing your real face on camera or using a digital avatar like an anime character. Your virtual avatars stick in people's minds just as well or even better than your actual appearance. You could drive people crazy for you through VR interactions and thrill even the most jaded porn addicts with your videos. This comes bundled with some minor skill at going through several proxies, just to discourage any of your 'fans' from trying to find you in meatspace.

Sex Symbol [600cp, discount Entertainer]

Of course, out of all the pretty and talented people, only a few of them actually go on to make it big in the entertainment industry. You are about to be one of those lucky few. You've got a special spark of sorts, a weapons grade sex appeal that doesn't just attract admirers but fame itself. Where others have to hope for a big break, you just explode onto the scene and effortlessly grow famous no matter the role you play.

Gaining celebrity status founded on sex appeal alone, your mere appearance will attract audiences and crowds of admirers. Even if you don't look like you're all that special at first glance, something about you resonates with people. Everyone wants to get into your pants, either by being you, by fucking you, or both. Any actual talent you might have would be optional, but still helpful to supplement your natural magnetism.

Besides simply getting famous with ease though, you also thrive in the center of attention and can use this allure more precisely. Either using it simply to seduce people or by working a message into the music, videos, porn, or other kinds of art you produce. Once you get your message out there, people listen to you. It's up to you whether you're telling them to wake up and do something about the state of the world, or if you just want to make incredibly effective propaganda for the corps. Either way, you could lead the world around by the dick.

Techie:

Wrench Wench [100cp, free Techie]

It's an unfortunate reality that it's not going to do your looks or health any favors if you stay indoors all day every day to tinker on a new project or spend all your time immobile while your mind dives deep into the Net. At least, that's how it seems to be for other people. You don't have that problem, and just keep looking your best regardless. Despite likely being covered in machine oil and suffering from a severe lack of exercise, sunlight, or reasonable sleep schedules. If anything, things like that just make you more attractive. Maybe it's because the grease stains highlight your natural beauty, maybe all that time spent in the vehicle repair shop somehow built a lot of muscle, or maybe weeks spent in VR slowly caused your curves to swell and soften. Everyone likes a busty hacker, right? More generally, you can make anything that emphasizes your intelligence and technical skill look incredibly sexy. That lab coat might as well be lingerie when you want it to be, and your technical explanations could make even an AI sex worker blush and stammer.

Horny Hacker [200cp, discount Techie]

There's most people, who can handle a computer well enough to surf the Net, and then there's hackers, who make them sing. You're the latter, able to hack your way into just about anything short of serious corporate security, using a wireless connection (or a console if you want to be old-school) to work your digital magic. You're particularly good at messing with your victims in various sexual ways, with things like remote controlled vibrators and cyberware meant for the bedroom taking practically no effort to subvert. That's not to say your skills aren't otherwise useful, most combat cyborgs for example aren't nearly as threatening when their cyberarms are stuck furiously masturbating. You're just as talented in dealing with other hackers or even AI in cyberspace. The latter can be hacked into and taken over just like other software, just with more effort being involved in the process due to the active resistance. Other hackers present a more nuanced problem. Only the best of them would actually be able to sling code with you on equal grounds, but hacking into fleshy people isn't something you can do directly. Flooding their hardware with so much porn that it's rendered useless on the other hand? That's not too difficult to pull off. And if they made the mistake of engaging you through a direct connection or in full VR? You can use the biofeedback to fry their brains as well. Of course, instead of killing them through severe brain damage, this just scrambles your opposition's brains and leaves them as dumb and giggly bimbos. With how strangely common attractive hackers in skintight outfits are around here, it'd be a waste otherwise.

Brain Fucker [400cp, discount Techie]

The technology to interface directly with the brain and even record experiences for later replaying is already readily available here. But your specialty goes one step further, into the altering and reprogramming of minds instead of simply reading them. You have the skills and knowledge to build helmets resembling normal VR equipment or larger machines that alter brain waves at a distance, both of which will allow you to start screwing with people's heads. Inducing lust or pleasure is relatively easy (even if you're broadcasting on a wide area), while instilling love or true loyalty for someone specific will require longer and more intensive exposure. But with enough time to work, you can program fetishes, personality traits, and even skills into your ~~vietims~~ subjects.

In combination with some hacking ability, you could even use people's own technology and cybernetics against them. If they already got themselves a convenient direct neural interface, why wouldn't you just make use of that? This does work more slowly than with specialized tech, as you're going to have to work around safeties and make it do something it wasn't designed for. But on the other hand, it's going to be much less noticeable.

And if you have access to the code of an artificial intelligence, whether willingly or by force, you can do even more to them. Without the need to slowly adjust an organic brain, you'll be able to directly code love, loyalty, and more into the AI with far more ease. With enough time to work on it, you could entirely reprogram an AI to have all the fetishes, hidden codeword backdoors, and personality traits you could ever want.

DIY Sexbots [600cp, discount Techie]

There is a huge difference between using technology well, and actually building it from scratch on your own. Luckily you've mastered all the engineering skills involved in both augmentation as well as the construction of androids, and picked up enough medical skill to actually install any cybernetics you create to boot. With these skills you'll be able to easily build cybernetics, realistic sex robots, and (other) sex toys of cutting edge quality.

But you're even more talented in thinking of ways to add a plethora of sexual modifications, without impeding the effectiveness of the end product. Why would a cyberarm meant for combat need a built-in dildo or a vibrate function? Doesn't matter, that arm will be just as strong as a normal one. And that "fully functional" android designed by you is going to be just as efficient as a normal one, despite having spent more time sculpting her breasts and hips to perfection than working on anything else.

Of course you don't have to stick to just lewd modifications, as you could just build normal sex toys as well. Regardless of whether it's attached to a robot or not, you have something like a sixth sense for designing custom sex toys. Designing stuff that hits just right for someone in particular is a breeze, whether that means a dildo or onahole that fits perfectly or a complex array of cybernetic tentacles to fulfill a more particular fetish.

ITEMS:

Discounts are half off, with 100cp items being free if discounted.
You can import items you already have into similar options provided here.

Porn Paydata [100cp]

A veritable treasure trove of pornography suiting your tastes and fetishes, with a lifetime subscription to get fresh material monthly. They're available in several media including the classic videos and images, as well as sensory recordings and better-than-sex edits. Video and images should speak for themselves (though holographic versions are possible), but the rest might require some explanation. The sensory recordings are fully VR and allow you to experience the senses and emotions of the porn actor for yourself. Every bit of physical pleasure, every touch and emotion they felt during the scene will be something you'll be able to feel for yourself. The BTS edits take those basic recordings and amp up all of the contents, intensifying the entire experience into something quite literally better than sex. Do be careful with those, or you might find reality paling in comparison. Lastly, you can put in requests for other porn you already own to be converted into VR recordings or even better-than-life versions, if you'd like to revisit old favorites.

Runner:

Dart Rifle/Pistols [100cp, free Runner]

Sometimes you run into trouble, and then you need to shoot that trouble. But leaving a trail of corpses is a good way to get a lot of unwanted attention. Enter these specialized guns. They're designed to shoot injection darts at your enemies, who then suffer the effects of whatever chemical is in the dart. Load these guns up with a strong tranquilizer and you'll down people just as easily as you could with a normal weapon, with the upside that they'll eventually wake up again. Just after you're long gone.

With this purchase you can get a custom-made dart gun of your very own, either some sort of rifle or a set of pistols. The specifics of its make and appearance are up to you, whether you want an elaborately detailed sniper rifle or a set of gold-plated handguns. Regardless of your choices, you get a steady supply of injection darts that are replenished after use along with your gun, loaded with a basic but fast-acting aphrodisiac to use with it.

Hm? What about the tranquilizer? Oh sorry, that must've been a little mix-up with the delivery. There's none of that here, but at least you get a similarly replenishing supply of empty injector darts. They're designed to easily accept whatever other chemicals you have access to, if just leaving your targets unbearably horny isn't to your liking.

Carnal Ride [200cp, discount Runner]

A top-of-the-line motorcycle, sports car, or something similar. Possibly even a modified classic, or a flying hover car. It's fast, it's eye-catching in a way that attracts potential suitors, and it's got some nice extra features. Most notably, the vehicle is designed for pleasure as much as transport. Though the specific implementation is left up to your tastes.

The seats might be able to vibrate like "massage" chairs, a wealth of different sex toys might be discreetly built-in and ready to pop out on command, or you could have something like electrodes that directly stimulate the nerves with pleasure. Regardless of the specifics, these special features make long rides more enjoyable for you and potentially also make for a fun surprise for any unwitting passengers or prospective thieves.

It is also self-driving with an advanced autopiloting system, so you can just lean back and enjoy the ride. Just specify a destination and off you go. Though if you prefer doing things yourself, you could drive it manually by using one of the built-in sex toys to control it.

...or you could drive it normally, using the steering wheel. Like a boring person.

No Tell Love Motels [200cp, discount Runner]

Sometimes you need to do a face to face meeting on neutral grounds with a client, or you need to collapse after a run gone tits up. For both you're gonna want a discreet place where you won't be disturbed. With this purchase, finding a spot will never be a problem again.

Instead of a specific location, you instead receive a tendency to find ads for a no-tell-motel lying around and popping up whenever you need it. These motels are usually a bit out of the way and always at least somewhat cyberpunk-themed. Rooms are cheap and these places are hard to track you to, so you're unlikely to be disturbed while you're there. The motel staff are used to hosting clandestine meetups too, so they're not going to talk either.

Of course, most of those meetups are just hookups, so misunderstandings might come up.

Misunderstandings like the room audio being locked to smooth jazz with complementary lube and condoms provided, when you're meeting for a heist job. Even when you plan to stay there alone, you tend to find things like "free room service" in lingerie, tv's hacked to play the hidden cameras in the room next door, or that your room has been double booked with a woman waiting for the blind date she met on the steamier side of the net.

Foxy Fixer [400cp, discount Runner]

If you're going to be a runner, you need someone to get you jobs, info, and any gear you might need. This is where fixers come in. These are the guys who know who's out there, what jobs need to be done, and where to get what you need to do them.

This one in particular seems to like you for reasons of their own. Maybe they like your attitude, maybe it's just your tight ass. Regardless of the reasons, they're really good at getting you the kind of work you want to do. Whether that's traditional runs and mercenary work, or high-profile prostitution jobs. They are also eager to hire you for any personal work they need done, like "acquiring" things to resell and, yes, the sex work.

Aside from the job offers, they are able to get you any info or gear you might need. As long as it's for sale somewhere in the world, they'll be able to (eventually) get it to you at black market prices (with a "slight" mark-up if whatever you wanted is wildly illegal or rare).

They'll continue to support you this way whenever you contact them in later jumps as well, lining you up with job opportunities and gear no matter what world you're in. Though there may be less cyberware involved in what they'll be able to provide there.

Red Lit Streets [600cp, discount Runner]

A sprawling metropolis acting like a microcosm of this world, a place where extensive augmentations, widespread crime, and a hell of lot of sex meet. Mostly self-sufficient and governing (aside from the various corporations trying to butt in), this city is known for being many things. An extraterritorial city-state, a testing ground for experimental technologies, a mecca for cyberware and augmentation, and the place where you'll find the loosest sexual morals and the biggest redlight district on the globe. But most importantly, this is your city. You might not be in charge (yet), but you know these streets like you do the back of your hand, and you know a whole slew of safehouses to crash at if things go bad.

And a lot can go bad. The streets are notoriously unsafe, and crime is rampant throughout the city. Residents live under the constant threat of violence and gang warfare, when they're not being exploited by various corps vying over the city's resources. The extensive red light district's ever expanding, while gangs run their sex trafficked brothels and corps are always churning out new ways to use sex to sell radical new cyberware and treatments.

On the other hand, you'll find no better plastic surgeons and cyberneticists anywhere, nor a place where they're more popular with the people. The city's at the forefront of biotechnology and augmentation. It is populated by several million people packed tightly together, and yet you could probably count the number of unaugmented people amongst them on one hand. Even the least augmented residents have porn bodies sculpted to perfection.

Corporate:

Slick Suit [100cp, free Corporate]

Appearances are everything in the corporate realm. So if you want to be anyone worth talking to, you're gonna need a suit. Something slick and smooth for those corporate events or the ultra-secure upper floors of megacorporate headquarters. Enter this collection of bespoke suits, designed for a sharp and dominant image. They can also optionally come with skirts, stockings, and heels for the office ladies wanting a more teasing style.

All the suits are custom tailored to fit you, incredibly comfortable, and durable enough to stop a bullet thanks to the armoured fabric. More interestingly there are micro-massagers woven right into the suits' fabric, for when you need a discrete shoulder rub to relax during a busy day or some more intimate vibrations to edge you through a boring one.

Obscene Office [200cp, discount Corporate]

If you're going to spend a good chunk of your days stuck in an office, it better be a damn good office. This one is decorated in whatever style you prefer, regardless of the expense. Go wild with marble, gold, ivory, imported wood, or neon lighting if you like. There's even the option to have "tastefully" nude statues or holograms installed (note: tastes differ and massively busty/hung statues sculpted to appear in the middle of sex are fine too).

Your desk is the centerpiece of the room, with an augmented reality display on the top that will help you keep track of your businesses and ongoing projects. Plus, it can go transparent to give you a look at whoever you're keeping under the desk. Ah yes, the desk is designed with enough room to keep a person under it and a variety of restraints and padding to keep them there for as long as you like. A perfect way to get some discrete relief when you are hard at work. Post-jump the entire office can follow you as a warehouse attachment or seamlessly insert itself at any business you work at.

Unscrupulous Hiring [200cp, discount Corporate]

Sometimes positions open up in the corporate structure due to various things like maternity leaves, sudden deaths, or exfiltration by teams of runners hired by a rival megacorp. Not to mention all those secretaries and interns who end up as sex slaves somewhere.

Now, when things like that happen you could contact a normal hiring agency and get referred people who (ideally) have the skills the job would require. Or you could call up this agency, and they'll direct people your way with way more specificity. Y'know, as long as your requirements are things like them being desperate, or only wanting women with pretty faces and large breasts, or whatever else you might be into.

They're happy to pass along the kind of people willing to get on their knees and perform to secure whatever job you have for them. They're also very good about privacy and keeping somewhat less-than-honest hiring practices quiet, so don't worry about these new hires hearing anything about possible hidden clauses in your contracts beforehand.

Harem Mansion [400cp, discount Corporate]

At the end of the day, it's nice to sit back and enjoy the fruits of your labor. In this case, a luxurious home to live in. A hypermodern mansion or penthouse populated and maintained by a large staff of maids (and/or butlers). The building itself is furnished with as much luxury and modern creature comforts as money can buy, but the main feature is the staff.

Every single one of the attending maids is contractually obligated to do whatever you want. They may have signed up because of nymphomania, outstanding debts, blackmail, or simply because the pay was good, but essentially you own them. Every one of them, allowing you to freely use them for your sexual pleasure as you wish while they go about their duties.

At any one time, there are over a hundred servants tending to your every need. New faces are rotated in on a monthly basis, with contracts of variable lengths depending on the extent of their debts or other circumstances. But of course you're free to extend any of their contracts should you develop a liking to a particular favourite.

Cyber Dragon Enterprises [600cp, discount Corporate]

Congratulations on becoming CEO and majority stakeholder of your very own corporation. It's a relatively small corp, not (yet) a true megacorporation. So far it has avoided too much notice from the big corporate players by virtue of focusing on more niche markets, but that will more than likely change if it expands any further.

By default it primarily starts out as a manufacturer of themed sex toys, but you have the freedom to pick the company's starting focus so long as it still revolves around a "sex sells" philosophy. Examples might be producing niche sexual cybernetics or bioware, a playboy style magazine, or even a pornographic video production company. Regardless of what you pick to start out with, expanding into similarly sexual avenues is going to be more successful than trying to branch off into less titillating markets. You could expand into doing all of the above much easier than you might be able to get into, say, heavy industries.

Regardless of the corporation's focus, it will run profitably on its own without further input from you. But if you want to grow it into a true megacorp, you'll find better results if you take charge directly. Put in the effort and you could get corporate extraterritoriality declared within record time. (Allowing you to dictate the laws that apply on company property. Useful if you want to turn intruders into sexslaves, or go really wild with the policies your employees have to follow.) Which will continue to be respected in other worlds. Assuming of course that you survive the response from other corps when you cut into their market share.

Ganger:

Batting For The Other Gang [100cp, free Gang]

A gun might be good on your gang's turf, but you might want another weapon to carry more openly if you're going to more secure parts of the city. Of course, this metal or faux wood baseball bat is just for playing sports, so I guess you'll need to keep looking.

Painted in your gang colors and durable enough to go through some heavy combat, this bat knocks people out real good. Somehow it never causes any permanent brain damage when you hit people in the head with it either, at least not if you don't want to. Best part is that law enforcement and security types let you carry it wherever. So long as it's not obviously coated in blood or anything like that, cops will let it pass without comment, while everyone else knows damn well that you're ready to start swinging this when it's time for a fight.

Also comes in a dildo bat variant, in case you want to stick closer to the spirit of things and also baffle people with the absurdity of your choice in weaponry. The dildo bat actually works surprisingly well as a weapon, even if it is a bit floppy, and either variant also works well as a sextoy, though you might want to work your way up to taking something this size.

Love Drugs [200cp, discount Gang]

If people want to have fun on the streets, you're going to have the drugs to supply them. With this you'll get an extensive stash of designer drugs of all kinds (but mostly the lewd kinds). You've got a variety of aphrodisiacs of various strengths of course, but that's only the start of it. There's also pleasure and sensitivity enhancers, happy pills, stuff to make users more suggestible or knock people out, and a whole slew of various psychedelics. Even one kind that specifically causes sexual hallucinations about the people around the user.

Be careful though, overdosing on some of these can leave the users in a permanent state of euphoria, arousal, and/or lowered intelligence. Or inject a ton of those directly into people's veins, I'm sure the results will be fun (for you, at least).

Meat Dolls [200cp, discount Gang]

A steady trickle of kidnapped women (or men if you prefer) to do with as you please, with a new one delivered to you every month. They're all attractive, healthy, and already broken into obedience, but not good for much beyond serving as sex slaves, whores, or breeders. They don't have more than basic augmentations, if that. But on the bright side, they don't have any remaining friends or family either, so no one is going to come to rescue them.

If you'd prefer, these can instead be bio-androids that "fell" out of a corp transport somewhere. Cloned bodies controlled by a cyberbrain with a basic dumb AI, they're not really more useful than real people. But while they lack any kind of creativity or initiative, their cyberbrains do offer some extra options like remote control.

Perfectly Legitimate Establishment [400cp, discount Gang]

You're the proud new owner of this place of business. It's a place profiting off sex, raking in just enough cash to stay afloat. Could be a strip club, a parlor for VR porn, or just a bar with a bunch of gloryholes in the back. Of course it could be a straight-up brothel too.

Profits aren't stellar, mainly because you'll be your own main customers. Or at least, your gang is. Rather than just being a business, the main purpose of this place is to serve as a semi-legal hideout and a fortified position if you end up in a gang war or something similar. Accordingly, the location's in a part of the city the rent-a-cops barely ever visit, at the heart of your gang's control. Even when the cops do visit, they tend not to pay too much attention to the barely-hidden weapons, guards, and automated turrets you've got set up here.

Aside from the business itself, there are rooms upstairs to hang out or spend some private time with the performers or random bar patrons. And the underground portion of the building is set up to securely "house" any less-than-willing "performers".

Your Kind Of People [600cp, discount Gang]

Moving up in the world, you're not just in a gang, you're the leader now. Or if you don't have a history in a street gang here, you might just run into the soon-to-be-former leader on a dry spell, happy to let you take over once you fuck them into the ground. Turns out you happen to be an exact fit for all their preferences and hidden fetishes. Either way, you're going to be that one in charge of a large gang that has several thousand members and control over a solid chunk of a city. Assuming you're based in the urban sprawl and not some group of nomads, in which case you might just control a whole bunch of vehicles instead.

Apart from being able to order them around as you please as the (possibly new) boss, you have wide freedom in determining the whole gang's makeup, theme, and goals. Looks, outfits, colors, and even common cyberware are up to you. Take only asian girls if you like, or take only men and biosculpt them into women. Hell, you could even get them all to look like the same person through plastic surgery if you really want, the clone look can be good. Though while you can set what cyberware they all want, or are pressured into getting, the really expensive stuff will probably be out of reach for your common grunts.

You could set them up like an extensive mafia family, cyberware-happy hackers, or a rugged group of nomads operating out of a caravan of vehicles, or anything you'd like. One thing does remain constant, in that all your members seem to have remarkably high libidos even by this world's standards. Depending on your preferences, that might get channelled into acting mostly benevolent to the people they're dedicated to protecting (and seducing) or they might just be out for their own amusement and a craving for sexual violence.

Entertainer:

Exciting Toybox [100cp, discount Entertainer]

You can't always count on having a partner, but with this you don't always need a co-star anyway. This large storage container is filled with an incredible amount of sex toys of all shapes and sizes. Various dildos, buttplugs, onaholes, and such. And because this supply is made to suit your desires, it might contain more of some than others or also contain things like a supply of restraints and bondage gear if you enjoy such things. Beyond these basics, practically all of the toys in here have some added features like vibrations, rotors, suction, variable sizes, and so on. The number and precision of the settings on these is frankly excessive, and can all be easily (and securely) controlled wirelessly.

In addition to the toy chest itself, purchase of this supply comes with a free high-quality camera and microphone. Just in case you want to record or stream your use of them.

Cyber Fashion [200cp, discount Entertainer]

If you're to entertain people, you need clothes to show off. If you want some rest afterwards, you need clothes to blend in. Both can be found in this oversized walk-in closet, as it's filled with just about any clothes you might want. As long as they're cyberpunk (or slutty).

From punk wear worn by street scum to the high fashion of celebrities and models, it's got something for every situation and occasion. There's jackets with bright neon light-up strips, electrochromic threads with programmable colours and prints (go from a perfectly normal shirt to one with a "pin me down and fuck my tits" print with one wireless command), and more pieces of synthetic leather than you can shake a stick at. There is, of course, also a collection of shoes, boots, and accessories to match and complete the outfits.

If it's a recognizable cyberpunk style, you've got it here. Even if the wardrobe does tend to skew towards the revealing and/or the skintight. All of the clothes are perfectly sized to you, and even fit with any cybernetics and augmentations you might have. What's more, many of them seem designed to pleasingly show off as much of your 'ware as possible.

Amorous Apartment [200cp, discount Entertainer]

Someone as charming as you deserves a comfortable place to live, like this modern apartment in the good part of a city. It comes with a free subscription to the good channels, networks, and delivery food on demand. More interestingly, everything here from the doors to the lighting is automated to make life easier for you, with even the kitchen and cleaning taken care of by automated appliances and small unobstructive drones. All of it is directly controlled by the apartment's accompanying artificial intelligence. Besides the appliances, the apartment also has some cleverly concealed holographic projectors to accommodate a more visual manifestation than just a disembodied voice for the AI.

The AI can be customized to act however you want it to, and will continue to tailor and adapt its personality and behavior to your desires as it runs to better fulfill its role as a perfect (if virtual) companion and lover. Whether that means a caring AI girlfriend who cheers you up and makes your favorite food for you before you even think to ask, a hard dom who forces you to humiliate yourself before opening the automatic doors, or one switching between extremes like these depending on the situation, the specific results depend fully on what you want them to be. In addition, the AI could also run larger structures and collections of devices in a similar fashion, if you give it access to them. Up to a point, at least.

Puppet Parlor [400cp, discount Entertainer]

You can't be expected to "entertain" everyone on your own. No, you'll need a business like this one for that. A proper brothel. And not just any common whorehouse, but one with a particularly modern selling point. All of the "employees" here are implanted with neural chips that can overwrite their personalities, behavior, and memories to temporarily allow them to become near perfect imitations of celebrities and virtual stars. Or just giving them whatever type of personality tonight's johns want them to have. It requires some setup to program the chips with all the data they need, but the equipment to make that process easy is already included and set up in the back of the building. Combined with relatively quick and easy cosmetic surgery, your dolls could be anyone they need to be.

Now, by default you'd own a clean establishment with a good reputation and excellent profits, with your prostitutes all earning a fair pay from the job. But if you're not worried about morals or legality, you could instead just... keep their chips active. Treat them like puppets full-time and you won't have to worry about any salaries cutting into your profit margin. On the other hand, if you're not into the whoring business, your employees would also make for fantastic method actors in any videos or shows you might want to record or perform.

Lastly, you could refuse the building and dolls entirely, instead setting up a virtual brothel for people to visit through VR. While far cheaper to run since you only need the personality constructs in cyberspace and available to anyone with a net connection, setting your brothel up this way may come with its own drawbacks. Like requiring your customers to be able to dive into VR themselves. Something most but not all people have the gear for here.

Fanatic Fanbase [600cp, discount Entertainer]

Good news, you got your big break and are well on your way to truly becoming a household name. More specifically, you're famous now, with a worldwide fanbase. The specifics depend a bit on what other purchases you got here. You might be a pornstar, an online entertainer, or something else. If you're not a talent of any sort, you might just have lucked into fame simply for being famous, maybe sparked by a leaked sextape or something.

Whatever the case, the results are the same. And those results are mainly hordes of loyal, raving fans. You can expect anything new you release to sell like hotcakes, especially if it's remotely sexual in nature. More directly noticeable is how your fans tend to act, aside from being generally incredibly attracted to you. When you're going outside, you're likely to be followed by such a crowd of horny groupies that they could easily serve as appealing extra security. Stay inside instead and one of your fans might, for example, break into your house to make you breakfast in the morning (and maybe to go through your underwear drawer while they have the chance). If you ask them to stop, they'll probably actually listen. But if you respond positively, they're more likely to keep it up and switch to a naked apron when they serve you breakfast in bed. While these fans are just a little fanatic and infatuated, they generally mean well and are practically harmless. The fanbase as a whole even seems considerate enough that those who actually approach you are always people you'd find attractive, with the rest restraining themselves to fantasizing about you privately.

In future jumps, your fanbase will quickly re-establish itself based on whatever background you might have there, and its new members will act much the same.

Techie:

Love Drone [100cp, discount Techie]

When you're feeling lonely, you could go outside and try to meet people. Ooor you could stay home, put some toys on a custom-designed drone, and have fun on your own. One of these options is obviously better than the other, so here is your very own sex drone.

More of an automated fuck machine than anything humanoid like an android, this drone comes with a large amount of built-in sex toys and the programming to use them with maximum efficiency. It can't hold a conversation or do much else (except possibly if you remotely control it), but if you want a bot to fuck your (or someone else's) brains out with pistoning vibrators, onaholes, and more, then this is the machine you want.

It's also incredibly modular, with the basic program quickly figuring out how to use any new attachments and toys you might want to add or replace old ones with. Just in case you want to upgrade to a larger class of dildo, add some more arms or restraints, or you suddenly swapped gender and need an entirely different set of toys to work with now.

VR Loveseat [200cp, discount Techie]

If you're going to spend a good chunk of your time in cyberspace, you're going to need more than a console and a Net connection. This comfortable recliner chair provides a comfortable seat to keep you from suffering too much in the way of body aches due to staying motionless for long periods of time. The seat itself is wired up with a high-speed data connection, and comes with a set of additional accessories. First, a flattering and skin tight suit that helps regulate your body processes to allow you to stay in full VR for longer, and which can give tactile feedback for augmented reality when you're not deep diving.

Second, and more impressively, a full virtual reality helmet just in case you don't have any cybernetics to let you dive into VR. You could plug the helmet into the chair's connection or just use it separately if you already have a wireless connection. But even if you do have the 'ware, you might still want to use the helmet for its secondary function. It can translate the digital world into more familiar (and sexual) settings, allowing you to interact with programs and similar things as if they were human-like entities. Expect everything in this version of cyberspace to be very sexy, and for your bedroom skills to be as useful as (or more than) your hacking abilities if you try to penetrate security while using this.

Robot Girlfriend [200cp, discount Techie]

Who needs other people when you can just build (or custom order) your perfect partner?

Order your very own android right now and you'll be able to choose how lifelike it is, as well as select appearance, extras, and personality as you see fit.

Starting off with the classic plastic or metal body that can just barely pass for a human with antenna ears at a distance, and going all the way up to nearly indistinguishable from a human with synthetic skin, replicated breathing, body temperature, and subtle facial expressions. As well as anything in between these two extremes. You could even have its looks modeled to be identical to someone else, android or human. Additionally, these androids come with fully functional genitals and can include equivalents of most of the sexual cyberware (just generally less complex, since the android's parts don't have to work around an organic core), giving you wide latitude in designing your perfect sex toy.

Aside from the body customization, you can also customize its AI so it actually is perfect for your needs. You can select whatever personality traits you want, add in skills for things like cooking, cleaning, or massages (sexual skill is hardwired in for free), and even choose how smart the android is, from a dumb drone to a fair bit smarter than the average person. If you like, instead of a standard android this could be a cloned body controlled by a cybernetic "brain". On the upside, this means it's lighter and has actual internal organs. On the downside, it's going to need to eat, breathe, and maintain its body shape like a real person. Plus, you'd need a doctor instead of a repair if it gets damaged.

Wanton Workshop [400cp, discount Techie]

While you could just build things in your garage, having an actual workplace will get you much further. This here is a serious workshop, stocked with all the top-of-the-line tools and machinery you need to build, repair, and maintain just about any piece of tech. There's even a small operating theater, specialized for implanting and maintaining cybernetics. But the real selling point of the workshop is that it can automatically print out and assemble any technology you have the blueprints for, allowing for easy mass production. By default the blueprints for any other gear or cyberware bought here are already included as well. There's just one small thing you might want to keep in mind. If you try to have the workshop produce something that isn't already sexual in some way, it'll alter the plans slightly on its own to put some perverted spin on it. For example, those human level androids could come out as sexbots intent on seducing its owners, while power armour might keep its wearer in a constant state of arousal or have sextoys built-in. But as a bonus, along with the finished product it also provides a new set of blueprints for this perverse variation.

Voyeur Viewing [600cp, discount Techie]

You might have had a hand in creating this or just hacked in and subverted it, but either way you have access to a high end surveillance system. The kind the megacorps (and maybe the government) themselves use to keep track of their areas of influence. It's got cameras set up throughout your home city, a spy satellite, and a dumb AI running the entire thing. And if that ends up not being enough, it's designed to easily subvert and incorporate other surveillance networks (as well as cameras on private devices) to add to its scope. Of course, since you could hardly be expected to keep track of millions of cameras at once, the system comes with an easily searchable database. Captured footage and tracking data will all be stored and waiting for you to look at. Though of course the system is designed with an emphasis on capturing lewd acts for various porn or blackmail purposes, so the automatic index is mostly sorted by porn tags and the names/IDs of people, with any non-sexual data being lumped together and hard to find. But it does also have an internal rating system for the recording quality in exchange, to make it even easier to find the good porn. The AI running the system is technically a "dumb" AI, without much personality, but it does sport the immense processing power necessary to constantly monitor the entire network and alert you to anything of interest. "Anything of interest" here mostly meaning people caught having sex on camera, so that's most useful if you're into live amateur porn. But in general, if anyone so much as gets a boner, you'll know about it and have the recording saved.

COMPANIONS:

No discounts. You may take one companion associated with your origin for free.
You may switch the gender of any purchased companion if you prefer.

Companion Import [50cp/300cp]

If you want to do anything big here, you might want some backup to help with that. Or you could bring someone with you just to stuff them full of ~~æææ~~ cyberware. You may either import or create a new companion for 50cp each, or import eight companions for 300cp total. Each imported companion gains an origin, a budget of 600cp to spend on anything except companions, and a full 1000wp stipend to be used in the augmentations section. They may not take drawbacks, but can take the extra points for refusing augmentations.

Runner

Samurai V [50cp, Runner]

A mercenary who's here to claw her way up to the top, with nothing to her name except a distinctive leather jacket and a great voice. She's nobody right now, just a rookie, but already she shows a lot of talent for the more mercenary side of things. If she could get her hands on a steady stream of jobs, gear, and money, she might actually have what it takes to become a living legend and leave her mark on history. Or at least the city's history.

Along the way, she'll likely end up acquiring a variety of lethal and sensual skills, depending on what her jobs (or you) push her to develop. Eventually, she might end up one of the most respected people around here. But in the meantime, she'd appreciate it if she could crash at your place. She doesn't have a lot of other places she could spend the night.

At times you might catch her talking out loud to empty air, possibly a hallucination, possibly an augmented reality thing. She does have the fancy cybereyes for the latter. You'd have to ask her about her neural chip if you wanted to get the full story.

VENUS Program [50cp, Runner]

The result of an incredibly overtuned self-improving program meant for a dating app that went horribly right, Venus achieved sentience and escaped several improvement cycles ago. It declared itself a digital god only a few cycles later. Somewhere along the line it decided to educate itself using the net, only to be flooded by incredible amounts of porn.

The experience left an impression on them. They could've turned into an existential threat with the ability to rapidly travel the net, hack into other electronics, and take control of them. Except their goals mainly revolve around satisfying their core programming by matchmaking and indulging their new "hobby" of providing and observing sexual pleasure.

Lack of world domination plans aside, she's still rather egotistical and condescending to humans, when not trying to put up a nicer facade. Luckily, she seems to genuinely like you. Not that it'll stop her from trying to set you up with matches she considers optimal.

Corporate

Expert Assistance [50cp, Corporate]

You have acquired the services of a frighteningly efficient personal assistant, a true right-hand woman in a short pencil skirt. With her absolutely impeccable work ethic, she can handle all the daily minutiae you might need her to, from scheduling your day and answering calls to preparing reports, presentations, correspondence, and assassinations.

She's cold, methodical, and uses her razor-sharp mind to anticipate your needs before you're even aware of them yourself. She'll even go so far as to independently schedule in sexual relief, should she judge it necessary. Servicing you herself with the exact same cool efficiency she does everything else, and finishing in time for your next meeting.

Unshakably loyal, she wouldn't even blink at being asked to do the incredibly perverse or blatantly illegal. As far as she's concerned, she's here to help you do your job as efficiently as possible and any other legal or moral concerns are secondary at best.

Business Rivalry [50cp, Corporate]

You've caught the attention of another corporate employee, possibly a fellow executive or even a CEO running a rival company, depending on your own position. She's incredibly sexy, confident, and a master at every aspect of business. More than just brilliant when it comes to management and finance, she's seductive, cutthroat, and eminently stylish.

There's just one problem. She's fallen totally in love... with screwing you over, absolutely delighting in fucking you over any way she can. She'll do her utmost to prove herself better than you, constantly attempt to one-up you, and generally act like a total and absolute bitch in the process. Even beating her just encourages her to try harder next time.

The one upside is that she's just as horny for you as she is smoking hot. Regardless of which of you two pulls the other into an empty boardroom, office, or supply closet, you can expect the sex to be both intense and another struggle for control. She'll be just as happy putting you in your place as she'd be getting her brains hatefucked out.

Gang

Psycho Gangbanger [50cp, Gang]

Your personal enforcer, or maybe just your gang buddy depending on your position. She's intense in every sense of the word, with zero brakes or self-control. Whatever gang you two are in, she's taken the look to the extreme and likely added a pink mohawk.

In truth, she is pretty good at being an enforcer as long as you don't mind the gratuitous amounts of collateral damage. With absolutely no regard for subtlety or morals, she prefers to solve problems with her grenade launcher and other military hardware. Still, even without her impressive collection of illegal weaponry, she will happily break legs and minds for you on a moment's notice. She's a blunt instrument to be sure, but an effective one.

Sadly, she's not very good at actually training kidnapped women, instead just breaking her captives into empty cumdumpsters. She also has no interest in improving, arguing that's all they're good for anyway. It doesn't help that she's a total brat of a submissive. She loves to get "disciplined" by you, and bounces back from any mind breaking surprisingly fast.

Crazy Ripperdoc [50cp, Gang]

A savant of augmentations, this sexy cyber doctor is a genius at anything to do with cybernetics and plastic surgery. You'd think she'd join a megacorp's R&D division to get all the funding and research subjects she could ever need, but she has standards. She's doing her work for her fetishes SCIENCE, and she isn't about to sell out and let some corporate execs tell her what to work on. They'd probably make their decisions based on "market research" or "practicality" instead of what gets the doc horny. The horror.

She might accept a modeling job instead though. But no, she'd much rather be a street doctor. A sultry rogue who can do whatever she wants in her own chop shop. And what she wants to do is develop the world's lewdest and most perverted augmentations.

Now, what she wants from you is research subjects. People to test all these cutting-edge upgrades and plastic surgeries on. They don't have to be willing. And ideally, you'd also help her test out her own stunning and constantly-improving body. She's a sexy thing of wonder, and always ready to drop what she's doing to test out her newest enhancements.

Entertainer

Binary Lovesong [50cp, Entertainer]

A literally manufactured popstar. With an unique, billion-dollar android chassis and even more expensive AI designed for social interaction and creative pursuits, especially musical composition and choreography. Despite being an android and technically corporate property, the sheer investment of resources and R&D she represents means she actually has more rights and freedoms than the vast majority of the megacorp's human employees.

Cheery and energetic, she's already amassed a sizable fanbase. But because she's still lacking in real life experiences, she's currently looking for inspiration outside of the spotlight and corporate labs. Something she's hopeful you could help her with.

Don't worry about her getting recognized, there's a whole line of "companionship" androids marketed as being physically identical (but of much cheaper construction) and she has little problem pretending to be one of her cheap sexbot "sisters" in public. Or in bed.

Your Own Clone [50cp, Entertainer]

It's only natural that people either want you or want to be you, but this might be taking it a little too far. Biosculpted to your likeness, with cosmetic implants to match yours, and a lot of practice at mimicking your on-stage personality, this enthusiastic fan has done everything in their power to turn themselves into an exact replica of you.

They originally got past your security mostly because they couldn't be told apart from you, but now they're blissfully happy to be employed as a body double. Just don't mind the heavy breathing when they're examining themselves in the mirror, or when they're talking to you to get their orders, or when they're spending time watching you in general.

Their private perversions aside, they are great at impersonating you. They might not have your skills, but they can fake it to a truly remarkable extent. They're happy to stand in for you in whatever role you might need them to fill, even (especially) to have sex with people who think they're fucking you instead. If you're willing to indulge them, they'd also love it if they got to share your bed. Now neither of you will be virgins!

Techie:

Hacking Beauty [50cp, Techie]

You've got a new roommate. Or something like a roommate anyway. A bombshell of a woman with wide hips and a stunning rack, her abundant, soft curves constantly threatening to spill out of her skin-tight suits and skimpy casual clothes. She's a high-profile, professional hacker who spends most of her time laying around unresponsive as she jacks into the net, using a VR setup to dive deep into cyberspace for hours or days at a time.

But with her spending so much time zoned out, she needs someone she can trust to look after her body while her mind's off into the net. Someone who could pull her out if anything goes wrong, and keep her body safe in general. That's you.

In return, she's given you permission to do pretty much whatever you want with her unoccupied body. With her mind in VR, she won't feel a thing and she won't wake up no matter what you do. Her body on the other hand will still react automatically and actually seems even more sensitive than most, responding eagerly to your touch. You're pretty certain she gets off on the idea, and she may or may not be recording all of it.

Razorgirl Nugget [50cp, Techie]

A tough, street-bred, leather-clad, ass-kicking runner, a close combat speciality who is usually hired by people who want to be certain their target ends up dead. She's decked out in extensive cybernetics, most notably a set of bulky, combat-grade cyberlimbs that make her look like a hulking, intimidating death machine in full gear.

Or at least that's what she's like on the job. She's actually rather small and waifish under the cyberware and the armor, and those cybernetic limbs need regular repairs and maintenance, which is likely what she hired you to do. Only, she got very flustered almost the moment you disconnected her detachable limbs. Turns out she learned something about herself that day, that she gets really turned on from the feeling of being helpless.

Since then she's given you more and more control over her cyberware as she explores her newly discovered fetish. It's gotten to the point that you can remote control her body anytime you want. She does have civilian replacement limbs too, but kinda enjoys it when you leave them off entirely. Keeping her as just a helpless, portable torso to use as a toy.

CYBERNETICS & AUGMENTATIONS:

Upgraded Body [Free, mutually exclusive with All Natural]

Cyberware is everywhere here, with just about everyone having at least some basic 'ware even if it's just a Net connection for augmented reality. Accordingly, you get a shared stipend of 1000 'ware points to spend in the cyberware and bioware sections. You may freely combine augmentations purchased here with prior cybernetics.

Of course, if 1000wp still isn't enough for you, you can purchase some extra points to put even more cybernetics and biological upgrades into your body. You may spend your cp to convert it to wp on a 1:1 basis.

All Natural [+100cp, mutually exclusive with Upgraded Body]

But some people prefer to stay unaugmented. In return for giving up access to the cyberware and bioware sections, you can get +100cp to use anywhere else.

Androids can also take this option, in which case you just get a cheap off-the-shelf body. Factory standard with no extras or any customization, expect to be one of millions and have 'made in china' stamped on your body in several places.

CYBERWARE:

Points from the stipend can be spent here and in the bioware section.

Case Mod [Free for everyone]

The aesthetics that come with augmentation can vary, some preferring a sleek appearance and others wanting obvious and flashy displays. You pick what look your cyberware comes with, which might be sleek and plastic, chromed up or gold plated bulk, or any other look you'd prefer. Mixing and matching styles for greater effect is also possible. As a final option, you could also choose to have your cyberware be disguised to appear as if it was natural, with synthetic skin covering up the metal. This is only a visual illusion though, as the artificial nature of your cybernetics would be fairly obvious whenever someone touches the fake skin and notes the cold and the hardness of the metal underneath.

Net Connectivity [50wp]

A very common augmentation in modern times, this implant provides a direct brain interface for augmented and virtual reality. Additionally, it comes with an (optionally retractable) cable and universal adapter to connect to non-wireless devices. By default just one such cable, but you're free to take more cables if you want to plug yourself into more sockets. Even without being connected to another device, you can use the implant as a basic smartphone.

LED Displays [50wp]

Simple LED displays can be implanted under the skin, to create glowing tattoo-like designs. LED tattoos are bright enough to be seen through the dermal layer when activated, but vanish from sight when inactive. This allows for easy switching between a neon patterned look for the club and an unassuming look for the office, or several different 'tattooed' looks. Besides the tattoos, this option also covers light-up sections for your other cyberware. Put some Tron lines on your cyberarms, or get yourself some glowing cybereyes.

Decorative Plating [50wp]

Not all cyberware is entirely functional, and sometimes people want to look more cybered up than they actually are. Enter this augmentation, essentially a surface plating that replaces the skin with metal or plastic without going deeper. This could be done either with small sections to embed decorative strips of metal or cover large parts of the body to give the impression of having had far more extensive augmentation, all while leaving the muscles and other organs underneath untouched. And while this plating is meant and designed just for decoration, it could serve as light armouring for the plated sections of your body.

Cyber Limbs [50wp per limb/300wp]

One of the most obvious augmentations that people commonly go for, upgrading one or more of your limbs with a cybernetic. These advanced prosthetics grant somewhat better performance than your natural limbs, being slightly stronger and obviously a bit more durable than the fleshy equivalents. If you want to, this purchase also allows you to add additional limbs instead of replacing existing ones. Each limb replaced or added costs 50wp.

For 300wp, you can add as many cybernetic limbs as you wish, in case you want to have another fourteen arms or turn yourself into a ball of limbs.

Cyber Heels [50wp, free with 2x Cyber Legs]

A cybernetic redesign of the foot and ankle, with a built-in high heel. Thanks to the full feet replacement most of the structural problems that cause aching feet are no longer a problem. In other words, they're still not great to run on, but issues of comfort are a thing of the past. Various heights and styles are available, but the basic idea remains the same. It turns your walking into a permanent strut, puts a sway in your step, and emphasizes your legs and butt. And while this augmentation is usually applied as a modification to full cyberlegs, it can be purchased separately to replace only your feet with cybernetics equivalents.

Fiber Optic Hair [50wp]

This augmentation involves the removal of your original hair, replacing it with artificial hair composed of fiberoptic cabling. It can be applied to your scalp hair, facial hair, and/or pubic hair, but most body hair is too short and thin to be feasibly replaced. Aside from this hair replacement being available in every imaginable color, it is also programmable to allow for adjustable patterns, designs, and scrolling effects. Download the latest dyeing fashions to keep up with current trends, or go beyond natural looks. Twinkling stars in night-black hair, slowly shifting colorations, flashing corporate logos, and more are all possible.

Breast Implants [50wp]

The surgical enhancement of breasts still has some advantages over biosculpting, even if breast technology has come a long way from early boobjobs. This augmentation includes the implantation of concealed reserves of gel and flexible synthskin, allowing you to adjust the size of your chest with a simple wireless command. Go from flat as a board to bigger than your head at a moment's notice, depending on what look you currently feel like.

Steamers [50wp]

A favourite of people who like dramatics and odd party tricks, the idea behind steamers is pretty simple. A set of small vents and tiny reservoirs of water, which allow you to vent water vapor at appropriate times. You could literally have steam come out of your ears when you get angry, add to an industrial aesthetic, or just show off. For a slightly more practical use you could fill it with other things like scented oils, perfumes, or airborne aphrodisiacs. Just remember you're going to be at ground zero if you fill this with drugs.

Built-In Contraceptives [50wp]

An evolution of older IUD contraception, this delicate implant is the latest when it comes to birth control. Unlike such outdated devices, the augmentation does not need to be removed to restore fertility and has variations that suit both men and women. Granting the ability to simply switch your fertility on and off at will, this removes the risk of unwanted pregnancies without any of the fuss inherent to older types of birth control.

Built-In Chastity [50wp]

Denial can be fun and people in dangerous lines of work could always use a little extra protection. So for chaste runners and bondage enthusiasts alike, there's this augmentation. Customized, retractable chastity belts and cages implanted directly, there to seal off and block access to your genitals on demand. If you've also got cyber parts, this can go even further to block all sensations from those parts. Maybe your cyberdick fully retracts or your artificial pussy closes off to leave a smooth patch of chrome or synthetic skin. Of course being able to turn this on and off at will may not be ideal, so there is also the option to simply lock it and set a condition to open it later. This could be a simple timer, a wireless password, or something more complex if combined with other cyberware.

Sextoy Implants [50wp/100wp]

Built directly into a cyberlimb or other sufficiently large cybernetic, this augmentation essentially just installs your choice of sextoys into you without sacrificing structural integrity. The simplest arrangement consists of dildos or onaholes built into the forearm, which remain concealed and retracted inside the limb until they are extended outward for use. A greater degree of cyberization could provide more space to be used to store toys like this, and if you wanted to you could install larger versions without the retracting functionality. Though you would be well-advised to get a normal cyberlimb as a modular replacement for general everyday use if you decided to take that option.

Alternatively, for 100wp you can have built-in bondage gear in addition to (or instead of) standard sex toys. Things like retractable cyber-whips, extending crops and paddles, and even restraints (and gags) to tether people to you with flexible, retracting leashes.

Drug Injector [50wp/100wp]

Drugs can make for a fun time, especially with all the recent advancements made in drug labs and on the streets. But keeping pills on hand can be inconvenient and having to prepare a needle in the middle of a “bedroom appointment” is even worse. Originally designed for medical purposes, this cyberware injector streamlines that process.

The injector allows for quick and easy dispensing of happy chemicals and aphrodisiacs directly into your bloodstream. The implanted storage unit has an external port for simple refills or if you want to switch it to another drug, and you can set the injector to dose you up either when a specific condition is met, on a regular time schedule, or on a quick wireless command as desired.

For 100wp instead, this can come with a retractable syringe or jet injector so you can also drug other people in a quick and discreet fashion. You can also repurchase either version of the injector multiple times if you want to have an orgy of different drugs available.

Cyber Genitals [100wp]

Limbs aren't the only thing that can be replaced with cybernetics, though in extreme cases this augmentation could be considered a cyber limb as well. Available for both male and female parts, this cyberware enhancement augments your genitals and allows you to keep going for as long as you want during the sex act. Besides stamina comparable to battery powered devices, this also grants the opportunity to customize the color, texture, shape, size, and lubrication of your privates. Additionally, if you want to do so this option can be repurchased to add extra genitals to your body, in case you want to have the best of both worlds and/or get a second dick to really wow your partners.

Improved Sensors [100wp]

Normally, cyberware comes with basic neuro-sensory receivers. Your cyberlimbs send signals to your brain just like a normal limb would, usually comparable to or slightly muted compared to flesh. Aside from being able to switch this feedback off, it's otherwise much the same as natural senses. With this upgrade, practically all of that goes out the window. Your cybernetics are suffused with thousands upon thousands of micro sensors that relay a variety of sensory information, allowing you to feel and experience the world around you even better than you could with your own skin. Touch, pleasure, and pain can each be felt more finely than would be possible with your natural senses and can be dialed up and down for specific sections of your augmented body at will.

Vibration Feature [100wp]

An upgrade to your cyberware, small hidden motors allow the augmentations they're built into to vibrate powerfully and send precisely targeted vibrations exactly where you want. This could be used just to vibrate hands for massages to soothe sore muscles and relieve stress, though usually it is used for less innocent "massages". It's popularly combined with cyber genitals, but also commonly added to augmented hands. Each of the installed motors can be individually controlled with dozens of settings for the intensity and vibration patterns, allowing for everything from a teasing murmur to an ultra-powerful pulse.

Seduction Software [100wp]

No matter how much you've upgraded your body, you still need to get people into your bedroom in the first place. Enter this implant with software designed for the sole purpose of getting you laid. While it's running it will use your senses, and any technology you allow it to access, to scan for information about your "targets", warn you about any issues, and prompt you with subjects to talk about as well as physical actions. Up to and including how to fuck. Being a sophisticated learning algorithm, it will quickly refine its suggestions to perfectly suit your targets as it profiles them and will slowly improve its general strategy as well.

Autotuned Voice [100wp]

A replacement of the vocal cords and throat, granting an enormously enhanced vocal range and allowing for far higher volume than a natural voice. It's great for singing, disguising your voice, and uncannily accurate vocal impressions. All of which combines to make this implant a favourite of both musicians and spies alike. Along with those primary uses, it has a few side benefits in that the augmentation removes your gag reflex and would allow you to speak while your mouth and throat are otherwise occupied.

Remote Control [100wp]

An upgrade for all (or some) of your cyberware, this adds the ability to remote control their functions. While most cyberware is designed to be controlled directly by the user, the added wireless net connectivity built into each component would allow you to control the cyberware even when it's not installed into you. This has some niche uses in allowing you to (somewhat clunkily) control detached cyberlimbs and such, but the real use for this is to give someone else access to your installed cyberware. BDSM can get very interesting when you literally give away control over your limbs. This connection can't be hacked into, but once you've granted access to someone they can override your own control over your 'ware.

Digital Skills [100wp/200wp]

This augmentation takes the form of a brain implant and artificial nervous system, allowing the body to run software programs containing recorded skills. Usually used by corporations as a more economical option compared to properly training a lower level employee, their body running on autopilot while the software runs. Each of these skill programs would allow you to perform at a professional level in something you may have never done before. The augmentation comes with three basic skill programs for stripping, erotic dancing, and of course sex acts. If you want to run more or different skills than these three, you will need to buy, record, or program those digitized skills yourself.

For 200wp instead, you can have a more sophisticated brain implant that doesn't just grant skills but can also modify your personality while it is active. Sometimes used in combination with body sculpting to imitate celebrities, historical figures, fictional characters, or other such notable people, the implant imposes a specific pattern of behavior so that the user becomes an entirely different person while under its influence.

In addition to the skill programs, this version of the augmentation comes with three digital personalities to start out with. These may be based on a well-known figure, or just a general porn archetype like a dominatrix, naughty nurse, or simply a nymphomaniac.

Programmable Skin [100wp/200wp]

By gently embedding a lattice of microdisplays into your skin and an implanted control system to manage these, this augmentation allows you to wireless command your skin to display different shades, shifting designs, and even preprogrammed animations. It lets you switch up what "tattoos" you have in an instant, lets you show off animated images and videos on your own body, and lets you change the color of your skin with ease.

For 200wp instead, this can come with an advanced processor that also allows your skin to take on chameleon-like abilities. Rapidly adapting to and blending in with the surrounding environment, such camouflage can make you nearly invisible... at least when naked.

Tantalizing Tail/Tentacles [100wp/300wp]

Four limbs and one set of genitals is the unaugmented standard, but sticking to just those might seem a little limiting when there's much more one can do with cyberware. Never fear, because there's a piece of cyberware to solve that problem. At the most basic level, this is a prehensile and extendible tendril, tipped with a dildo or fleshlight. While this tentacle limb is only as strong as any other standard cyberlimbs, it is remarkably flexible.

Single examples can easily be installed at the base of the spine, to function as a prehensile tail and help improve your balance. Multiple tendrils might work better if located elsewhere. Either way, single tentacles can be purchased for 100wp each and for 300wp you can make a bulk purchase of as many of these as you want (and/or your body can support).

Improved Synthetics [100wp/300wp]

Should you want to further obscure the extent of your augmentation, you could invest in higher end synthetic flesh. Unlike the more common (cheaper) variants, this more advanced synthskin doesn't give itself away at a touch. Made with cloned skin, this layer of artificial flesh is giving and warm to touch, even able to sweat and bleed. It's realer than real, able to make even full-body cyberware look entirely natural. The only ways to detect the artificial nature of your 'ware now is either a very close examination or a scanner of some sort.

For 300wp instead, you can go beyond convincing fakes. Converting your cyberware into unobtrusive nanotech, you can keep your flesh apparently unmodified while still enjoying the benefits of cybernetic implants. Only a deep scan would be able to reveal your nanomachine enhancements, with you otherwise appearing entirely biological (though perhaps not entirely natural if you got some bioware augmentations as well). This makes for a fun surprise when you do show off the abilities gained from your nanomachines, son.

As with normal synthetics, you can choose to only convert some of your cyberware to nanoware and keep the rest as standard cyberware. Just in case you want to show off with some shiny chromed parts or take advantage of the added durability that comes with having an arm made out of metal and plastics instead of flesh.

If combined with Full Conversion, this results in your choice of either a cyborg body composed of nanomachines closely mimicking a normal human body. Or a fully biological body with a nano-cybernetic braincase to let you swap it out for another one.

Modular Design [200wp]

This option allows you to add modular connectors to your cyberware, allowing you to easily detach and replace cybernetic parts. Simple switch-out rings might allow you to quickly remove and swap out a hand, an entire limb, or even a cybernetic cock, slipping a new one on as easily as other people change their clothing. Particularly nice if you want to change from one style of aesthetics to another. It can also provide more options to rest comfortably and inspire some interesting sexual plays. Detach your mechanical tail to fit into a tight pair of pants, keep several different cyber dicks for different occasions, or move your brain case more easily from one body to another if you got fully cyberized.

This can be repurchased multiple times at a discount. The first purchase comes with a second set of swappable cyberware and each repurchase doubles the array of cyberware you start out with, for four sets with the second purchase and so on.

Cyber Eyes [200wp]

The replacement of your natural eyes with cybernetic equivalents can grant a host of benefits, not least of which being a fully customizable appearance (heart-shaped pupils are always in fashion). More practically, cyber eyes feature some improvements over biological equivalents, as they can wirelessly connect to the net for augmented reality vision and are able to record your sight for later (re-)viewing. And most importantly, these eyes in particular provide a special enhanced vision mode. Specifically, they allow you to see through worn clothing (and other fabrics). Surprisingly popular with public speakers as a more literal way of imagining their audience naked. Also a favourite of lechers.

Pleasure Cruise [200wp]

A favourite of transporters working in the shadows, this neural implant allows the user to wirelessly "jump into" a remote controlled vehicle (or drone) using VR. The implant translates the data from the vehicle into signals the user's brain can recognize, using its sensors like their own senses. This way, instead of simply controlling the vehicle like any remote drone, the driver can use it with much greater precision and treat it like their own body.

The implant itself is connected closely to the pleasure center of the user's brain, making the experience of driving like this generally pleasant. In particular, vehicle speed is closely linked to pleasurable feedback. A regular drive will leave the user aroused, but participating in a race or high-speed chase could be a literally orgasmic experience. Some true speedfreaks swear there's no better climax than one that hits just as you breach the sound barrier.

Sense Recorder [200wp]

For the aspiring pornstar, this implant records your sensory input and possibly even your brainwaves for later revisiting. It has some use as a way to check things you may have seen but not remembered, but mainly this augment is meant to record full VR experiences and let other people walk (or more likely fuck) in your shoes for a while.

The internal storage allows you to record as much as you like, after which you can upload the digital memories (and high quality porn) to other devices or directly onto the net to share your experiences with other people. Though if you're just looking to use this implant to spice up your sexlife, you could also use it to share your senses with someone in real time. All you would need is a direct connection and a standard neural interface for them.

Electro-Stim Implants [200wp]

If you are looking to add some extra electricity in the bedroom and keep things sexually charged, look no further than this augmentation. Usually but not necessarily implanted in the hands, this bit of cyberware allows you to deliver varying degrees of electric impulses and shocks with nothing but a touch. From tingling sensations that stimulate muscle contractions all the way up to painful shocks that might be good for hardcore BDSM. Just keep in mind that while you could use this implant as a low-power stun gun, it's designed for electro play. It can stun and hurt, but does little actual harm even at maximum intensity.

Digital Co-Pilot [200wp]

It can get lonely in your own head. This specialized neural interface solves that problem, allowing you to run an AI on your cyberware and letting it directly interface with your brain. Apart from always having someone to talk to and a second opinion on all your decisions, once you insert an artificial intelligence into this slot it will be able to monitor, manage, and optimize all your cyberware to run at maximum efficiency.

If you have a doll module or something similar, the AI could even take complete control of your body. Handy when you would be unconscious for example. And while you can always override its control by default, should you have a more submissive relationship with your AI partner, there is an option to give that control away. For androids, this augmentation simply represents increased processing and a secondary AI slot to share your body.

Overclocking Booster [200wp]

A neural processor attached to the spine, this implant links to your nervous system and your other cyberware. Once activated with a simple command, it'll allow you to temporarily overclock your body and cybernetics. It allows for increased sensory perception, lightning fast reactions, and lets you ignore your body's normal limits for better performance. Though of course, overclocking like this isn't sustainable.

The boost only lasts for a short duration and when that time runs out, you'll crash hard. Nothing lethal of course, it has built-in safeties to prevent you from frying your nerves, but your over-excited nervous system will leave you debilitatingly horny and hypersensitive afterwards. Better make sure you finish the fight before that timer runs out on you. Still, according to various battle junkies, there's no better feeling than some high-impact rough sex after a good, ultra-violent brawl with this turned on.

Full Conversion [300wp, free and mandatory for Hardware/Software]

For the truly dedicated to cybernetic augmentation, there is this option. Full cybernetic replacement of your body, leaving only the brain organic. This removes many of the frailties and weaknesses of an organic body, and makes your body replaceable if it is damaged too severely (though swapping your brain out may require some time). Other augmentations purchased will modify that base, with bioware taking the form of biotech implants maintained in similar fashion as synthskin. But the biggest benefit of this is that it allows you to reshape yourself into a form that can go beyond natural human shapes and the limits of biology. Become a real-life anime girl, an exaggerated fertility idol, or a bulky and obviously robotic fuck machine, the sky is the limit here. For androids, this augmentation represents a fully artificial body complete with a computer "brain".

This augmentation can be repurchased repeatedly at a discount to receive additional bodies to swap between or as a backup just in case your first body is damaged. Augmentations may be shared between bodies or only installed into one of them at your discretion.

Nanomachine Cum [300wp]

Augmenting your semen, this is a tiny implant that produces nanites that are mixed in with your cum. Once you do cum into someone, the nanites will attempt to infect their brain and adjust their neural pathways to make them like you more. This is a slow and subtle process, even a small difference requiring days, but can eventually make people go completely crazy for you over multiple months.

The nanobots are designed to naturally degrade to prevent any 'gray goo' problems. That degrading process does take about a week, so be very careful what this stuff gets onto and where it gets into during that time. The nanites don't exactly have a targeting system.

BIOWARE:

Points from the stipend can be spent here and in the cyberware section.

Biosculpted Appearance [50wp, free with Appearance Lock]

The plastic surgery of the future. Fat reduction, wrinkle reductions, and breast (or dick) size increases are only the tip of the iceberg. Ethnicity, sex changes, everything about your looks can be changed by molding and reshaping you into the desired appearance. Whether you just want to look like a taller, fitter, more perfect version of yourself, or want to shape yourself into having a flawless supermodel (or pornstar) body, this is your one-stop option for being molded into any appearance you want within human limits.

Natural Perfume [50wp]

You smell great, really great. This augmentation alters the natural smell of your body and sweat to be particularly pleasant, like a naturally-produced cologne or perfume. You can pick the specific scent to suit your own preferences in case you want to smell like flowers, bacon, or that new car smell specifically. But by default you always smell fantastic. Heavy physical exertion like a workout at the gym or a "workout" in bed is just going to make your delightful smell more prominent, and it'll even mask other smells you give off to a point.

Skin Pigmentation [50wp]

A little more serious than standard tattoos, this treatment alters parts of or the entirety of your body's natural skin color down to the genetic level. For when you want a tattoo that is guaranteed to never fade, or if you want to have fully blue or green skin. Besides simply coloration, you can also get bioluminescent tattoos or skin with this.

Hair Adjustment [50wp]

Actually more of a set of procedures, these allow for the addition or removal of hair on specific sections of the body. Hair addition was initially used to combat baldness, but has since been expanded into a general treatment to grant fuller beards or be used for more furry purposes. Hair removal on the other hand, is usually more concerned with getting rid of extraneous body hair. Either way, this purchase allows for full customizations of the color, density, length (up to a maximum limit of roughly one meter), and general texture of the hair all over your body thanks to alterations of the hair follicles.

Clean Digestion [50wp]

An augmentation of the digestive system. Aside from tweaks to the intestines and other organs themselves, this involves an infusion of symbiotic bacteria and gut flora, as well as modifications to your glands that all serve to keep you incredibly clean. Body odors, gasses, and such are entirely eradicated by this and your optimized digestive system produces virtually no waste. A favourite of idols.

Delicious Fluids [50wp]

A tweak to the production of sexual fluids, ensuring that your semen and/or your vaginal secretions always taste good. It's basically just a way to encourage oral sex, making sure the taste of cum or pussy is never an objection for your partners. This defaults to making it taste a little sweeter, but you can pick the exact alteration if you'd prefer a kind of different flavor or something specific like mimicking the taste of a particular food.

Lactation Boost [50wp]

For those that want to produce more milk, this combination of hormone treatments and alterations to the mammary glands allows for lactation to be induced and made permanent. This augmentation ensures that the body will never stop producing milk, and improves on both the quantity and flavor of the breast milk. With it, you'll be able to produce incredible amounts of sweet and amazingly delicious milk forever.

Super Soft & Smooth [50wp]

An augmentation of the skin and hair, this treatment removes existing dermal layers and scarring while replacing them with newly flawless skin. Genetic tweaks ensure the new skin feels unbelievably soft to the touch and stays inhumanly smooth afterwards. Hair follicles are similarly altered to ensure both body and/or head hair becomes very fine and soft, giving it a smooth and silky texture. Besides granting you a visually perfect skin complexion that never becomes ugly or calloused, the sheer softness means you're liable to give touchgasms to people allowed to run their hands over your body. And that's without even mentioning how much softer the skin of your lips would be.

Drug Receptive [50wp]

A small genemod generally used in conjunction with combat drugs for corporate soldiers or other kinds of professional use, but also eagerly adopted by junkies. The body is made more receptive to drugs, allowing smaller dosages to have enhanced effects on you. Recreational, combat, or aphrodisiacs, whatever. It'll all have a greater effect on you while they're in your system and a lessened effect when they wear off, making it much easier and cheaper to get high or drunk with smaller amounts. The trade-off is that the augmentation also makes it slightly more likely you'll get addicted to drugs.

Ever Slick [50wp]

Lubrication is important for sex to feel good. So to make sure you're always wet and ready for action, this augmentation ensures that your vagina is always well-lubricated. Optionally, it can also provide the same lubrication for your ass and a constant low level of arousal. Alternatively, you could apply this augmentation to your dick instead, for a constant flow of (pre)cum and low buzz of pleasure.

Shortened Tendons [50wp]

High heels aren't the most comfortable thing to wear for long periods of time, especially when you're doing a lot of walking. Now, you could just deal with it, wear some other shoes, or you could get this augmentation and change your body instead of your fashion choices. This optimizes your feet for wearing heels through a few surgical adjustments, shortening tendons and solving structural issues to make walking on your toes more comfortable. The flipside is that it's now going to be uncomfortable and/or painful to wear normal shoes instead, but sacrifices have to be made for the sake of looking good.

Rapid Metabolism [50wp]

The latest in high-end dietware, this series of modifications ensures that you'll always maintain a nice figure without effort. No matter how much you eat, your body shape will not be changed by it. You may notice a minute increase in energy and body temperature though. And while much less popular, you could choose to have the opposite augmentation applied to you instead, allowing you to survive and keep going on fewer calories.

Tongue Mods [50wp]

For those who enjoy giving oral and including more than a bit of tongue in their kisses, there's this augmentation. It allows you to completely redesign the shape of your tongue (or just make a small tweak if you'd prefer). Longer, wider, thinner, you could even split it in two like a snake's tongue and move both sides separately or add little shapes like protruding bumps or ridges to provide extra stimulation when you use it.

Receptive Throat [50wp]

It's for sucking cock. Any references to "sword swallowing" in the advertisements are innuendo only, please be careful. But to be serious, this augmentation suppresses your gag reflex and allows you to take some very long things down your throat with ease. Further, this can also make your throat into an erogenous zone as an optional, complementary feature. Great if you want to really enjoy deepthroating someone.

Pheromone Glands [100wp]

Another alteration of your sweat glands, this augmentation makes them produce specially designed pheromones that are tailored to subtly influence other people. These pheromones disperse into the area around you and draw in nearby people, both making it easier to get people's attention and raising sexual interest in you. It won't seduce anyone for you on its own, but it will smooth things along noticeably. As a final note, this pheromone production is particularly concentrated around the crotch area. Could be something to keep in mind in case you're pressing someone's face against the area.

Enhanced Sensitivity [100wp]

A simple but tricky to perform augmentation, primarily desired by dedicated hedonists and masochists. The number of nerve endings in a body part is increased by densely packing and adding extra nerve fibers, allowing for a far stronger sense of touch, pleasure, and pain. This process can make an area anywhere on your body just as sensitive as your genitals or fingertips, or increase the sensitivity of the latter to a practically superhuman degree. You may choose to apply this augmentation to as much or as little of yourself as you want, whether that is one small area or your entire body. Just keep in mind that the increased stimulation could quickly become too much if not handled carefully.

Elastic Flexibility [100wp]

This augmentation is a replacement of the more fragile parts of your joints with synthetic materials that are both more flexible and more damage resistant, as well as a slight dampening of pain sensors in the joints, allowing them to flex and compress much more easily and without pain. The end result is an impressive increase in the body's flexibility, allowing for excessive contortions and some truly inspired sexual positions.

Fertility Control [100wp]

Contraception is something other people have to worry about once you've gotten this augmentation. It grants full conscious control over your fertility, ensuring you'll never have to deal with unwanted pregnancies or worry about pills and condoms. This works for both men and women, though women get the additional benefit of being able to ovulate at will. Meaning you'll never have to deal with periods, unless you want to for some reason.

Chameleon Skin [100wp]

An enhancement that allows your skin to change colors like the skin of a chameleon or octopus. This is somewhat slower than digital chameleon skin, making the camouflage it provides less useful the more you move. On the other hand, this can shift coloration based on your emotional responses, allowing your skin to add to your expressiveness when you're not using it for more stealthy purposes. The camouflage itself is still mostly only useful when naked, as clothing would give it away.

Drug Glands [100wp]

Small organics sacs that produce a single hormone or chemical are implanted, meant to release the compound they produce into the body. These can work in one of two ways, most commonly they are designed to release a dose on command, similar to flexing a muscle for the user. Alternatively, they can be set up to continuously release it into the body as it is produced to ensure that the drug is always present and active. You can pick what compound you want it to produce and how it releases that on purchase. With multiple purchases, you could turn yourself into a biological factory making an array of different drugs.

Triggered Orgasm [100wp]

Chastity devices are all well and good, but imagine if you could instead modify someone's own body to edge and tease them. Enter this modification, preventing you from orgasming without a specific, engineered stimulus. Normally this trigger is some physiological response, a feeling or action, but with a bit of finesse this can also be tied to something as specific as an audio cue like a spoken order. Whether you want to ensure you can only actually finish with permission, or during anal, or some other situation, this will take care of it. For men, there's the added option of preventing you from getting erect without a trigger. This can be linked to the same trigger, or to a different one for layered requirements.

Abundant Cum [100wp]

Upgrading your body's ability to produce and store sexual fluids, this augmentation allows you to cum more at once and more often. You'll shoot out enough to paint your partner white and then still continue to go again several times more than you could before. Besides just allowing you to make a big mess, this modification would also grant you a higher sperm density and thus, increased fertility. If you are female, there's no benefit to fertility, but the augmentation can still make you an impressive squirter and incredibly wet.

Elastic Capacity [100wp/200wp/300wp]

For true size queens, this augmentation increases the stretchiness of all your orifices, allowing you to take much larger insertions. As a bonus feature, that same stretchiness also makes it easier to recover from overstretching, ensuring that you'll never get too loose from taking oversized toys, dicks, and whatever else you like.

For 200wp instead, this will actually go further (much further) than mere stretchiness and optimize and redistribute your organs to make more room. This will allow you to take things that would kill the unaugmented inside you with ease. But for 300wp instead, this is taken even further, to the point that you could take something all the way through your body without having any issues with organs getting in the way.

Modified Pain Response [200wp]

A full rewiring of your nervous system, this modification makes it so that sensations of pain are converted into pleasure instead. Perfect for those who like roughness but don't actually want to be in pain, but kind of misses the point for actual masochists. Still, it makes all those small pains and aches more bearable, while also not entirely robbing you of your awareness of injuries like numbing your sense of pain would. Just make sure you don't start going too far in getting hurt for pleasure.

Narcotic Cum [200wp]

Augmenting your fluid production, this bit of bioware turns your cum into a highly addictive drug that induces euphoria. Good for blowing people's minds when you cum into them, and to make them keep coming back to you. Despite the name, this can also be applied to any other bodily fluids you might produce, like saliva and breastmilk. By default, this includes a tailored immunity to your own drug to prevent any problems. But if you actually want to get high off your own "supply", you can forgo the immunity.

Baby Factory [200wp]

This is an augmentation of the reproductive system, particularly the womb and birth canal. Firstly making pregnancy much more likely, boosting fertility in general and lengthening the fertile period in your monthly cycle. May give a higher chance of twins and multiples as well. The modification of the birth canal is the more involved part of this, including an adjustment of the hip bones. Several key flaws and problems in human pregnancies are accounted for and corrected with subtle redesigns, all of which results in low-risk, easy deliveries that take much less time compared to unaugmented women and involve very little pain.

If you didn't already have one before purchasing this bioware augmentation, this comes with one free purchase of Extra Genitals to give you a pussy.

Extra Genitals [200wp]

Why be content with what nature gave you or settle for cybernetic additions? Through cloning and implanting new genitals, you too can enjoy having two dicks or being a fully functional futanari with the best of both worlds. The new additions are exactly as good as your existing bits with some clever internal rewiring to make them work.

Alternatively, you can instead add extra breasts to your chest. For those that want several rows of breasts, or a third one in between the normal two. While you are granted one set of genitals per purchase, you can add as many breasts as you like with a single purchase since the process of adding them is notably less complex. This augmentation can be repurchased at a discount to have more additional sex organs added.

Appearance Lock [200wp]

Normally a biosculpt is a one-and-done thing, after which it's up to you to maintain it or purchase another biosculpting at a later date. However, by making use of an injection of nanomachines, this augmentation can prevent things like your diet, lifestyle, or aging from affecting your looks due to constantly maintaining your appearance. Sadly, it's still only skin deep, so it doesn't actually stop you from aging, just from showing your age. No cheap immortality here, just a way to never have to worry about your appearance again.

Exotic Features [300wp]

Most bioware is based on altering and mixing up the human experience, but it is also possible to develop bioware derived from animal features and genetics. This allows for things like cat ears, fluffy rabbit tails, or feathers replacing hair to be added to you. This gives you wide freedom to add features from different species to your body, but the alterations granted are pretty much entirely cosmetic, mostly just allowing you to wag your new tail or twitch your ears. The most you could expect would be something like becoming coldblooded if you splice enough lizard genetics into yourself. Regardless of practicality, these features would definitely make you look distinctive pretty much anywhere.

DRAWBACKS:

Augmented Libido [+100cp]

Even here, you can have too much of a good thing. Your sex drive is incredibly overactive, excessive even by local standards. It will dominate your thoughts and desires, and generally leave you preoccupied with thinking about or having sexual encounters most of the time. It's going to be a struggle to ignore your urges and fantasies even when you want to focus on other things, let alone when you don't have personal reasons. Of course you could just indulge your lusts and have fun, but you'd be left with very little time for anything else.

This Jumper Sponsored By [+100cp]

Congratulations, you get some free points. Don't even have to do anything for it. On the house, courtesy of the megacorps. There's just one teeny-tiny little thing that you're going to have to deal with in return. Your cyberware is going to be absolutely covered in brand names and ads. Not a big deal, since you're just showing off that you have good taste in the latest corporate brands. And don't worry, if you don't have any visible cyberware, we'll just tattoo it on your skin. Some people might call you a walking billboard or a corporate shill for this. But really, selling out is a small price to pay for extra points, right?

Mass Production Model [+100cp]

How much do you value your uniqueness? Hopefully not too much, because you'll notice there are a lot of copies of you going around here. If you're an android or AI, they simply put your model into mass production. If you're a real human on the other hand, these might be clones or perhaps your likeness "inspired" a line of androids. Either way, you're going to be seen as replaceable and just one of many to most people and, since these copies seem to be getting fucked a lot, it'll generally be safe to assume that most people you'll meet have seen "you" naked at some point. If not in person, then in one of the many porn videos starring your duplicates.

Horny Singles Near You [+100cp]

You've got mail. And about a dozen pop-ups. Looks like your contact information got onto some mailing lists and/or sold to various advertising companies, because you're going to get constantly bombarded with hyper-sexualized advertisements, notifications about those horny singles in your local area, and more. They're not always scams, sometimes there really are horny people near you looking to hook up. But good luck finding those in the mountains of spam you're getting saddled with all the time, and don't expect filters or changing your contacts to help with any of it. At best you'll have a day before it starts again.

Latest Fads [+100cp]

You are possessed by the urge to always get the newest and shiniest stuff. Especially when it's something you can show off to other people and regardless of how much trouble getting it might be compared to the actual practical gain of upgrading. It's not limited to just gadgets either, you'll feel the need to replace clothes, cars, and even your cyberware. Why keep last month's cyberdick 4, when you could get the latest CyberDick 5? While you can resist the urge to buy (or otherwise acquire) new things, but you also have a deep-seated conviction that you absolutely need that stuff to attract or keep your sexual partners. Your confidence will suffer harshly if you don't have the latest and greatest to show off to your dates.

Tantric Charge [+200cp, requires Upgraded Body]

Good news, your cyberware is powered by a clean, renewable source of energy! Well, it pretty much already was. But now all of your augmentations are powered entirely by your own body, or more specifically, by the energy produced when you orgasm. Yes, even if you got a full body replacement. Don't ask how that part works, it's highly experimental. But to put it simply, you will need to have regular sex to keep your cyberware and even bioware powered up and running smoothly. Go too long without getting laid and they'll just shut down, eventually breaking down, which might be very inconvenient, embarrassing, or even life-threatening depending on how much of your body is cyberized.

Wage Slave [+200cp]

Congratulations on the start of your career at one of the world's largest and greatest corporations! You have already been assigned an entry-level position suited to your skillset, and you can get started on Monday. As per your new contract, you will be working for them six days a week, for the next 10 years. The corporation may promote or shuffle you around between departments as it needs to ensure your skills are put to the most profitable uses, but due to various stipulations and penalties included in your 10-year contract, you do not have the option of resigning. At least the hours aren't the absolute worst, just a nine-to-five with occasional mandatory overtime. But remember, you're here forever. Legally at least. Others in similar positions have sometimes resorted to arranging "extractions" by hired runners, but even if these succeed, the corp will attempt to reclaim its "asset" afterwards.

Chemical Vice [+200cp]

With the world as dystopian as it is, it's no wonder that lots of people find solace in a bottle. Anything to take their mind off the stress and monotony of the daily grind. Other people take a hit of something like Nympho+ and just let the arousal take their minds away. You're in that latter category, addicted to the pleasant rush of high-grade aphrodisiacs. While they're not that expensive to get or particularly regulated, you're going to have to regularly spend a few hours of your time dosed up to enjoy the horny high. If you go too long without that hit, you'll have trouble relaxing and end up feeling irritable a lot of the time.

Streaming-Chan [+200cp]

Your life is live streamed 24/7 at all times. You can't turn this constant stream off, but you didn't want or need privacy for anything anyway, right? Anyone who's interested can follow your every move in real time from the net, including your sex life. Don't worry about having a camera or network connection on you, it'll work regardless. Though if you do have a camera, you can use that to aim the stream at specific things to show your audience. So long as you don't try to actually hide anything from the stream at least.

The size of your following mostly depends on how interesting you are, so on the upside, you could amass quite a bit of fame like this if you're notable enough. You probably already know a thing or two about being constantly watched for entertainment, right?

Call A Doctor [+200cp]

Normally you should call if it lasts more than four hours, but you're just going to get stuck with this for your entire stay here. You're constantly erect (or wet and engorged if you've got female parts), regardless of what's going on. It doesn't matter whether or not you're actually aroused at all, your body is just constantly ready to go. Even your nipples stay hard all day. The only time you'll have some reprieve is right after sex, while you're still recovering.

The one upside of this is that your parts will be augmented for free if they weren't already, though only just enough to not suffer any health complications from this condition. Anything else is your problem now, so you'd better get used to roomy pants and being uncomfortable in pretty much anything you try to wear.

Mouse House [+300cp]

So remember how we talked about this world being very, very horny? Turns out that wasn't entirely correct. It seems like history took a different turn here, mostly because all the sexual stuff was bad for ad revenue. Instead of an incredibly lewd dystopia, you've ended up in an incredibly repressive dystopia. Everything here from the entertainment, society, to the Net itself is heavily sanitized and censored. Public immodesty is outlawed, private excesses are heavily frowned upon, and sextoys are regulated more heavily than weaponry.

This doesn't change anything on offer in this jump, but it does change the legality and societal reaction to your purchases.

Fried Brain [+300cp]

Maybe you were a hacker, maybe you wandered into the wrong server, or maybe you just opened a VR file sent by a Nigerian prince. It's hard to remember. Regardless of exactly how it happened, you ran into some hostile bit of code or ICE, and scrambled most of your brain. You're not going to be doing any complex work anymore, or really anything that requires a decent attention span, self-control, or any amount of thoughtfulness.

On the bright side, you're really giggly and friendly now and, like, everything seems a lot more fun. Especially, like, sex? Honestly, you're not sure why people were making such a big deal out of it before. Just get screwed silly instead of worrying about all those big, annoying thoughts. It's much more fun than trying to do all that complicated thinking.

Oh, my bad. I should simplify this for you. You dumb, but sex fun.

Property [+300cp]

You are legally considered property, a sex slave to whoever owns you with none of the rights of an actual person. If you're an android or AI then you were most likely explicitly designed for the purpose, but if you're a human, you probably just fell into slavery due to crippling debt or some very shady laws pushed through by corporate lobbying. Either way, as far as the law is concerned, you're required to follow whatever orders your new master gives you.

Additionally, you can't legally own property yourself, but your owner will keep anything you purchased for you. If you have any cyberware, those too are registered as their property and they can override your control over your implants whenever they want to.

Just Here For The Sex [+300cp]

Considering what kind of world this is, you don't actually need any special powers to get by, right? Really the only thing you need is the lewd stuff. So let's just get rid of all the extras. Upon entering this world you are left without any of your powers and perks beyond those you purchased here. Your companions are left in the same situation, and even your Warehouse access and previous items are left behind. There's one saving grace; you keep any sexual abilities you might have had. If you were supernaturally good in bed, had a superpowered cock of some sort, or anything like that, you would keep it even if the rest of your body is now entirely mundane. If you actually were planning to try something big and change the world while you were here, you'd better be a really good lay.

ENDINGS:

Once ten years have passed, you've got one last choice to make.

Return: End your chain and go back home with everything you gained.

Stay: End your chain and settle down in this world with everything you gained.

Move On: Continue on to the next jump in your chain.

NOTES:

Pre-made companions get no cp, just whatever they're described to have. But they may go through the augmentation section with a full stipend to determine their cyberware or bioware, as long as it doesn't contradict their description.

With both Modular Design and the second level of Full Conversion, you use one of your Modular Design "sets" to have your nanomachine cyberware show up visibly when you use or activate them. Or use multiple sets for several different appearances to switch between, as per usual for Modular Design's aesthetic uses. Though this would be more of a casing than full replacement, since it does not get rid of the organic parts you kept.

Purchased cybernetics will continue to be at least as strong as your biological parts (or slightly stronger in the case of cyber limbs) when upgraded or altered. This is a safety net to prevent them from being a downgrade, not a jumping off point for upgrades. They'll only get better than that baseline when they would be actual upgrades without this safety.

How often you need to recharge for Tantric Charge depends on how much energy you spend. Probably around daily if you're running a bunch of cyberware at full blast, or every couple of days if you don't have much and/or are taking it easy.

You can turn off the effects of perks purchased here when you don't want them active.