Angelic Department of Justice

By Infinite_Incident_62

You really need to start watching where you are picking up fights. In your valiant attempts to stop a bar fight, you got stabbed for your troubles and bled out with no one to care for you.

The next time you opened your eyes, you were in a bright and very fluffy cloud filled place where winged humanoids seemed to be going about their days and duties. Before you could even ask what was going on, a female winged human approached you with a smile.

“Ah, a newcomer. Welcome to the Afterlife, my name is Angela and I am the overseer of this section of the Council of Angels. Needless to say, you died a worthy death by protecting the innocent and now-”

Before she could go on with her welcome speech, one of the angels pulled her aside and whispered something to her that caused her to gasp audiably. She ordered something to them in a language you didn't understand before turning back to you with a weary smile.

“I…apologize for the inconvenience but it appears you died before your time and therefore I am sorry to say to you that you can’t stay here and, unfortunately, sending you back isn’t an option.”

She notices your shift in expression to a worried look and promptly interrupts you.

“Hey, now. Don’t worry, there is something we can do for you. What do you say about becoming our newest recruit as a Jumper? You would be able to have a second chance at life and you would also be able to gather quite the power in the process. Such power, however, isn’t free. Let me explain…”

Rules:

Heavenly Approach: As part of your recruitment into our ranks, you no longer need to consider yourself a human and, instead, you can start to consider yourself as one of us. An angel. As a result, we will be requiring you to take the Angel option of species and any Holy or Light related powers that you come across. If no Angel option exists, you may appear as one in any setting as a drop-in. The exception to this rule is, of course, Fallen Angels as long as there isn’t the option to redeem yourself.

Eons Upon Eons: Time works…differently for beings like us. What is a long while to a human barely even registers to angelic beings like us. As a result, you will be expected to stay at least a millennia in any given universe. Your stipend will be determined by Your Number of Years as a Jumper x 1 meaning that your points stipend is 0 in your first jump.

Protector of The Innocent: I don't believe I need to reiterate something so basic as this but I will reiterate it anyways. We are good-aligned beings, we protect the innocent and we fight against the forces of evil. As a result, you must uphold this vow as long as you are in your chain. To always remain on the side of Light and never succumb to the Darkness. It will not be easy.

“Well, then, that wasn't so many rules to keep track of, wasn't it? Just act as a soldier of the forces of good and the rest comes easy. Oh, before you go, do you mind if I offer you some assistance?"

Companion

Evangeline: She is one of our newest members and, to be frank, she has yet to fully understand her role here. She will guide you on your duties and you in turn will help her in her roles, like improves like and all that. She is not strong but she does have heavenly training on spears and swords and can make a weak healing potion.

“Well, what are you waiting for? Go ahead, the universe is in need of more heroes after all. Good luck, I am counting on you!’
