Not only that, but you also seem to possess an improved regeneration, which doesn't make you heal faster but instead better, regenerating even something that couldn't possibly heal and actually becoming stronger from the damage inflicted. ## That’ s My Girl!

This is my Uma. There are many like it, but this one is mine. There are a lot of great girls around here, each striving to reach their goal, but you have a favorite. And fate would have it that you meet. It will also have it so you would start on the wrong foot, with that girl becoming rather displeased with you. You have to work hard to earn her friendship, maybe through becoming her rival and showing her who you really are through running or by becoming her trainer and helping her succeed.

If you succeed, you will get this girl as a companion. She gets Umamusume origin with it’ s discounts, all of the free perks, all the perks in her origins tree, Full Wardrobe item and 1000 points to spend freely.

Protect That Smile

Haru Urara: The Shining Star of Losers Everywhere. A horse that has lost 113 races. Uma, based on her, is a little ball of sunshine and joy that loves running and never gives up. Her goal is to participate in Arima Kinen. It would make her very happy to be there, and it doesn't matter that she will lose it. Bu hh-huh, why is she crying? She had so much fun…

You cannot allow it; no, YOU WILL NOT ALLOW IT! Be it as a supporting friend or as her trainer, you need to help her take first place at Arima Kinen!

If you succeed, you will not only make this precious bean happy, which should be a reward in itself, but also can take her with you as a companion with her receiving Umamusume origin with its discounts, all the free perks, all the perks in her origin tree, a full wardrobe item, and 1000 points to spend freely.

You will also receive a Shining Star of Losers Everywhere perk, which makes it so you always learn something by losing any sort of competition or battle and guarantees that if you participate in similar circumstances, you would perform much better as well as making you be able to become friends with "loser" archetypes easier.

The GOAT

There are quite a few great racers out there; some have retired, some are currently running, and some will soon start their careers. But everything is about to change as there's something big coming. Shortly after your arrival, the International Umamusume Racing Association will declare the largest competition this world has ever seen. It will be a race with a thousand allowed participants, with the winner being declared the best Umamusume of the modern age. The Umas who retired because they lost their spark will regain it; many of those Umas who wouldn't have started a running career would, and finally a big breakthrough in medicine that will help all those Umas who suffered injuries in their careers will also soon follow. The competition is fierce, and you only get a year to prepare and be recognized as a valid candidate. After that, all that is left is to win.

By proving your superiority, you gain the perk Greatest Uma of All Time, which makes it so whenever you find someone who is faster than you, you could quickly catch up to them in speed by challenging them to a running duel. Over the course of the duel, as long as you're giving it your all, your maximum speed will start to increase to match theirs. If you manage to win, you will regain that boost; otherwise, it will fade away. But nothing stops you from challenging them again. Finally, your reputation as the greatest racer of the modern age will follow you into the future world. Prove to them that you are truly the Best.

Steel Ball Run

The world is now a crossover between JoJo Part 7 and Umamusume. United States 1890. In a short while a race across America will begin, starting in San Diego and ending in New York City with a fifty-million dollar grand prize. The Steel Ball Run will attract all sorts of Umas from across the world, with both the original participants from JoJo being turned into an Uma as well as the Umas from this jump participating in it. With almost four thousand participants and 9 stages, this will be quite the race. Of course it wouldn't be JoJo's with something else going on behind the scenes, the mystery behind a certain corpse and the real purpose of this race.

For completing the race but not winning, you receive either a unique Stand or access to the power of Spin. For winning, you receive both and the winning money.

The Undefeated Monster

Where's that happy-go-lucky loser girl? And who is that pale Uma?

Haru Urara is no longer a hopeless loser but an unbeatable winner with a 113 winning streak and the fastest Uma in history. She surpasses most other girls to such an extreme degree that it isn't uncommon for her to finish dozens of meters ahead of her competition. But despite that, or maybe because of that, she hates her life, feeling hopeless and empty, despising every second of her career yet still continuing on for some reason. Maybe it's because she thinks there's a chance. A chance that somebody will come and surpass her, and it seems her hope is not without merit.

If you manage to beat her, the lost spark she had will be reignited, and she will do something she hasn't done ever before. She will start training to surpass herself. If you lose to her the next time you face off, she will quit racing forever and you' ll fail this scenario. But if you win and continue winning for 113 consecutive times with her training and becoming stronger each time she loses, she will become happy and content to declare you the strongest.

Doing so will grant her as a companion with her receiving Umamusume origin with its discounts, all the free perks, all the perks in her origin tree, a full wardrobe item, and 1000 points to spend freely. As well as granting you the Strongest Uma In History perk that will make you stronger after each of your victories, making it so that you could have easily beaten the version of yourself before the victory.

If taken with the Protect That Smile scenario, she's instead Haru Urara's twin sister.

She can say "prestigious" and is very bad at catching dragonflies with her bare hands.
