Apocalyptic Survivor Benefactor

By Infinite_Incident_62

You need to stop getting yourself in these kinds of situations.

While walking home one day, you came across a strange building and, for some reason, you decided to step through the entrance door.

What you didn't know was that the building was an interdimensional portal that sent you to a strange dimension.

Everything seemed familiar to any other normal city you ever met in your life. Granted, it looked a bit futuristic but it would be otherwise normal if not for one detail.

Everything was destroyed.

You wandered around for a bit, your mind trying to make sense of the scenery in front of you. As far as you could tell, there was no sign of life around.

And then you heard sobbing coming from an open area. You rushed there, hoping to investigate it.

What you found was a young woman, kneeling in the debris and crying. You went in to comfort her, her body jumping as you placed a hand on her shoulder.

"What the- a human? What-what is a human doing in this place? How did you g-get here?"

She sighs, trying to calm herself down, wiping away at the tears.

"I am sorry, I..I am a mess. I don't know what happened but…everyone I knew got destroyed by…something. It was all so fast…"

She takes a moment to get herself together, trying to compose herself as best as possible.

"S-Sorry, I d-didn't even introduce myself…what would my mother think of my lack of manners? Heh, my name is Alicia, I am what one would call a…Benefactor or..Jumpchan."

She sighs yet again before looking at you.

"Say…do you mind if I take you on a chain? I promise you will get powerful and all, I just…need to take my mind off of all this for a minute. Please, I…could do it with your help. Just…pay attention to some things, will you?"

Rules:

Apocalyptic Proofing: It seems ironic that I would be the one asking you this, given what you see around you and all but.I don't want anyone else to go through this. For the entirety of your chain, you can't incite world ending events and must interfere with the world in order to prevent catastrophes like it. If the catastrophe has already happened, you must do your best to aid the survivors.

Who Did It, Why Did It Happen: I suppose it would be fair to ask you for some help investigating why my world has become like this. Throughout your chain, you will be met with evidence surrounding the Apocalyptic event that took place here. You must gather enough of them in order to find out what happened and who did it.

A Caring Heart: Back before this all happened, I was considered to be a kind being who looked out for others and I do not wish for that to change even in the face of such odds. What I want you to do is just…do your best to aid those that are suffering, okay? Help the innocent and the helpless and make their worlds a better place while you are in there.

“I am sorry but…I don't have anyone to send you with on this. Just…go and do your best, okay? I'm…not the best company right now.”