Type Effectiveness, What Falls Under A Type, Status Effects

This assumes that you did not take the Pokemon: Pump & Dump Version drawback and change what types are available.

Type Chart

Fire beats and resists Wind

Wind beats and resists Earth

Earth beats and resists Water

Water beats and resists Fire

Dark beats Light

Light beats Dark

Typeless beats nothing and is resisted by nothing

What Falls Under A Type

- Fire: What you would expect
- Wind: Both air/wind related moves as well as a number of plant related moves
- Earth: Both ground/rock related moves as well as a number of plant related moves
- Water: Both water related moves as well as ice related ones.
- Dark: Moves that are “evil”, under handed, or brutal, as well as those that involve dark magic/curses.
- Light: Both light related moves as well as electric/lighting related ones.
- Typeless: Moves that are purely physical like a heavy blow, deal with a generic energy or raw soul energy, or in once case ripping through space.

Status Effects

- Freeze: Evasion drops by 25% and you take constant damage.
- Burn: Defense, both physical and “magical”, drops by 25% and you take constant damage.
- Muddy/Bog: Speed gets cut in half and accuracy drops by 25%.
- Paralysis/Numbness: Unable to act the following turn. This holds true even if you waste a turn using an item.
- Laceration/Cut: Attack, both physical and “magical”, decreases by 25% and you take constant damage.
- Curse: Unable to heal and you take constant damage

Changelog

v1.0

12/7/24: Doc is fully finished.

v1.1

2/19/26: Added the new 50 Yarimon added in the second DLC, added links to a Yarimon's pre and post evolutions, and added a section listing what type of moves are considered belonging to a particular "type" such as how electric/lighting moves are considered as belonging to the "Light" type.
